THE SYSTEM OF SCOTLAND YARD.

DETECTIVES IN FICTION AND IN FACT.

HOW A MURDERER'S ARREST IS DECIDED.

Scotland Yard in fiction and Scotland Yard in fact are two vastly different things. The success of London's detective headquarters is not due to individual men of genius with intricate powers of deduction, as portrayed by fiction writers, but to a rigid rule-of-thumb system, which makes it impossible for an officer to take any action upon his own initiative without its being first reviewed by more than a dozen brains in that building of stone and red brick overlooking the Thames. As an indication of the working of the system, there is the case of a chief inspector investigating a murder in a provincial town or village. Nightly his duty is to send by train to Scotland Yard a detailed report of every movement he has made, and when it concerns suspected persons—of every word uttered. The following morning, at the stroke of eleven, the Chief Constable, with his four area superintendents and the chief inspectors, sit in conference. The report is considered and a few minutes later the Yard representative in the country is receiving fresh orders by telephone.

The Arrest Of Thorn.

The arrest of Thorn and other murderers has been decided upon not at the scene of the crime, but in the Whitehall headquarters. Criminals are caught because not one, but a dozen or more brains apply a rigid system to every investigation. It is, therefore, all the more interesting to students of criminology to examine the first attempt made by an author to compile a history of Scotland Yard, and London's successful system of crime investigation. Mr. George Dillont, in his book entitled "Scotland Yard," gives the history and progress of crime investigation since the days of the historic Bow-street runners. The application of science to detective work, however, was not heard of until 1877. A departmental committee recommended that the detective department should be reorganised and placed under the charge of an Assistant Commissioner—for choice a criminal lawyer. It chanced that a young and ambitious man, not without some influence, saw opportunity in the Scotland Yard upheaval. This was Howard Vincent, who had been by turn soldier, war correspondent and barrister. He therefore went to Paris and made a survey of the French detective system. His observations he embodied in a précis, which he re-wrote eighteen times, and presented to the Committee. When it was decided to create a new detective department he applied for the appointment as its chief. He got it.

"Cold Common Sense."

Then the first real attempt was made to put detection on a scientific footing. But Vincent was fortunate in having a man such as Superintendent Williamson at his side. "The cold common sense of that experienced officer tempered the enthusiasms of the reformer, and in all likelihood prevented many awkward incidents, into which the unchecked zeal of the other might have led him. A day or two after he had taken control there was a big case of forgery, which demanded investigation. Have every station carefully watched, he ordered Williamson, and keep a close eye on the outgoing boats. "What will be the good of that, sir?" dryly demanded the veteran detective, and Vincent received the lesson that the first point in British detective work was the gathering of evidence to justify an arrest. Vincent, however, carried out numerous experiments towards the perfecting of a rough system. He was followed in office by Mr. James Munroe, a practical police officer, who consolidated the department and induced the public to believe in it.

SCHOOLS IN THE BLACK COUNTRY.

PICTURES AND OPEN AIR CLASSES.

A NEW USE FOR A MIRROR.

In the heart of the "Black Country" of Scotland, Lanarkshire education authorities are carrying on an interesting series of experiments for the propagation of art and knowledge among the children of the country. A new public school, built at Machan, Larkhall, is beautiful even in its exterior, white walls with a red-tiled roof, single-storyed, rising from a low foundation of red brick. Inside the entrance hall is a large mirror bearing the motto, "A merry heart goes all the way," and the corridor walls are decorated with reproductions of famous pictures. Three of the seven rooms occupied by the younger scholars are decorated to represent Morning, Noon, and Night, and the other four the Seasons. Notable pictures are painted on the walls of the senior rooms. The school accommodates 800 pupils. Dalziel Secondary School has been treated in much the same fashion, the pictorial scheme including reproductions of views from the artistic posters issued by the railway companies, while the corridors are hung with facsimiles of Medici prints. Drumpark Special School is the most remarkable innovation of all. Every room in this building has been given a different colour scheme to suit the different plant of the day, and decorated in a colour scheme to suit. From the Violet Room the visitor passes to the Poppy, Primrose, Larch, and Whin rooms; and one wall in each room is composed of sliding doors, which are to be opened during good weather, so that the classes will be practically in the open air. In the bathing room the pupils bathe twice a week, and there are classes at which they are taught tailoring and mending boots, and others for instruction in the care of pigeons and rabbits. Within the beautiful grounds of the school stand a dovecot and a rabbit house, and the pigeons and Angora rabbits are given over for a week to the best boy in the school during the previous week. Each week the class with the best attendance has the honour of keeping a banner with the legend on it, "We like school."

Sir E. Henry's Work.

Then came Sir Edward Henry, who in the phrase of the force proved himself "a good policeman." Of him the author writes: "No man ever lived who could handle such an instrument as the Metropolitan police without making mistakes in greater or lesser degree. His reforms were far-reaching. But if he had done nothing more—and he did much more—than initiate a practical finger-print system, and establish a police training school, his name merits record as that of one who, in modern times, struck the greatest blow at the growth of crime, and improved the status of the police officer beyond measure. What of the present-day detective? A well-known officer, discussing the present facilities of education in the force, said: "You may dress a man in spats and give him a 'Varsity education, but it is very long odds against him ever catching thieves." Sir Basil Thomson has declared that they may be divided into two classes—the detective and the thief catcher. Mr. Dillont contends there is half-truth in this. "The business of a detective, after all," he claims, "is chief catching, and from the point of view of the public, so long as he does it, it does not matter very much whether he is familiar with quadratic equations, or whether, like that old officer who reported a Royal personage, as arriving safely, 'escorted by a troop of dragons,' he has no use for the subtleties of education. The thief-taker type is still not unknown, even in the higher grades of the service, and there have been men of this sort whose rugged common sense has carried them to success where more subtle men would have failed."

THE SYSTEM OF SCOTLAND YARD.

DETECTIVES IN FICTION—AND IN FACT.

HOW A MURDERER'S ARREST IS DECIDED.

Scotland Yard in fiction and Scotland Yard in fact are two vastly different things.

The success of London's detective headquarters is not due to individual men of genius with miraculous powers of deduction, as portrayed by fiction writers, but to a rigid rule-of-thumb system, which makes it impossible for an officer to take any action upon his own initiative without its being first reviewed by more than a dozen brains in that building of stone and red brick overlooking the Thames.

As an indication of the working of the system there is the case of a chief inspector investigating a murder in a provincial town or village. Nightly his duty is to send by train to Scotland Yard a detailed report of every movement he has made, and when it concerns suspected persons of every word uttered.

The following morning, at the stroke of eleven, the Chief Constable, with his four assistant superintendents and the chief inspectors, sit in conference. The report is considered and a few minutes later the "Yard" representative in the country is receiving fresh orders by telephone.

The arrest of Thorne and other murderers has been decided upon not at the scene of the crime, but in the Whitehall headquarters.

Criminals are caught because not one, but a dozen or more brains apply a rigid system to every investigation. It is therefore all the more interesting to students of criminology to examine the first attempt made by an author to compile a history of Scotland Yard, and London's successful system of crime investigation.

Mr. George Dilnot, in his book entitled "Scotland Yard," gives the history and progress of crime investigation since the days of the historic Bow-street runners. The application of science to detective work, however, was not heard of until 1877.

A departmental committee recommended that the detective department should be reorganised and placed under the charge of an Assistant Commissioner—for choice a criminal lawyer.

"It chanced that a young and ambitious man, not without some influence, saw opportunity in the Scotland Yard upheaval. This was Howard Vincent, who had been by turn soldier, war correspondent and barrister."

He therefore went to Paris and made a survey of the French detective system. His observations he embodied in a précis, which he re-wrote eighteen times, and presented to the Committee. When it was decided to create a new detective department he applied for the appointment as its chief. He got it.

"Cold Commonsense."

Then the first real attempt was made to put detection on a scientific footing. But Vincent was fortunate in having a man such as Superintendent Williamson at his side.

SCHOOLS IN THE BLACK COUNTRY.

PICTURES AND OPEN AIR CLASSES.

A NEW USE FOR A MIRROR.

In the heart of the "Black Country" of Scotland, Lanarkshire education authorities are carrying on an interesting series of experiments for the propagation of art and knowledge among the children of the country.

A new public school, built at Machan, Larkhall, is beautiful even in its exterior, white walls with a red-tiled roof, single-storeyed, rising from a low foundation of red brick. Inside the entrance hall is a large mirror bearing the motto, "A merry heart goes all the way," and the corridor walls are decorated with reproductions of famous pictures. Three of the seven rooms occupied by the younger scholars are decorated to represent Morning, Noon, and Night, and the other four the Seasons. Notable pictures are panelled on the walls of the senior rooms. The school accommodates 600 pupils.

Dulziel Secondary School has been treated in much the same fashion, the pictorial scheme including reproductions of views from the railway companies, while the corridors are hung with facsimiles of Medici prints.

Drumpark Special School is the most remarkable innovation of all. Every room in this building has been given a different colour scheme to suit from the Violet Room the visitor passes to the Poppy, Primrose, Larch, and Whin rooms, and one wall in each room is composed of sliding doors, which are to be opened during good weather, so that the classes will be practically in the open air.

In the bathing room the pupils bathe twice a week, and there are classes at which they are taught tailoring and mending boots, and others for instruction in the care of pigeons and rabbits. Within the beautiful grounds of the school stand a dovecot and a rabbit house, and the pigeons and Angora rabbits are given over for a week to the best boy in the school during the previous week.

Each week the class with the best attendance has the honour of keeping a banner with the legend on it, "We like school."

Sir E. Henry's Work.

Then came Sir Edward Henry, who in the phrase of the force proved himself "a good policeman." Of him the author writes: "No man ever lived who could handle such an instrument as the Metropolitan police without making mistakes in greater or lesser degree." His reforms were far-reaching.

"But if he had done nothing more—and he did much more—than initiate a practical, finger-print system, and establish a police training school, his name merits record as that of one who, in modern times, struck the greatest blow at the growth of crime, and improved the status of the police officer beyond measure."

What of the present-day detective? A well-known officer, discussing the present facilities of education in the force, said: "You may dress a man in spats and give him a 'Varsity education, but it is very long odds against him ever catching thieves." Sir Basil Thomson has declared that they may be divided into two classes—the detective and the thief catcher. Mr. Dilnot contends there is half-truth in this.

THE GREAT POET OF MODERN INDIA.

AN APPRECIATION OF
DR. TAGORE.

RABINDRANATH TAGORE: POET AND
DRAMATIST. BY E. J. THOMP-SON. (OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS,
10/6 NET.)

There must be many besides the present writer who were privileged to meet Dr. Tagore on his recent visit to Singapore, writes Mr. R. J. H. Sidney in the Straits Times. The fact of hearing him speak must have made thousands realise why the great Indian poet's reputation is world-wide. To me, the scene in the Victoria Theatre on the afternoon of Dr. Tagore's first public lecture, will always be memorable. The Theatre was more crowded than I have ever seen it (in fact one really wondered whether the dress circle might not give way under the strain!), hundreds were content patiently to stand throughout the entire proceedings, and for some ten minutes Dr. Tagore's voice was calmly battling against the surging sound waves vibrating from the thronged auditorium.

Gradually, however, a calm ensued, and the poet's voice could be heard clear and bell-like. His voice had a wonderful quality of sweetness. It was persuasive and poetical, and the images he constantly evoked showed at once the quality of his mind. I should like to have read a verbatim report of the lecture. As the voice rose and fell—not monotonously but very sweetly—one began to understand that here was not only a poet but a musician as well, and a stranger—even though he knew much of Dr. Tagore's reputation—could not fail to marvel at his mastery of the English tongue. One went away feeling that one must know more about such a man; that one must find out for what he stood in life and in the world, and here is Professor Thompson's (the author is lecturer in Bengali at Oxford) book, which will tell us as much as we wish to know and probably send us to Tagore's work for more.

Tagore's Life And Works.

What will amaze us at first is that Dr. Tagore—in spite of a very active life in education and other phases of human activity—has contrived to write so much poetry and music. "Milton's English verse," says Professor Thompson, "is less than 15,000 lines; Rabindranath Tagore's published verse and drama, the subject of the present study, amount to 100,000 or their equivalent. His non-dramatic prose, in the collected edition of his works now in process, will be in the proportion, to his verse and drama, of seven enormous volumes to three." This statement makes us realise something of Dr. Tagore's enormous output, and, as we read this book, we learn that he has never allowed himself to rest sufficiently between his creative activities, and that in consequence there is much stuff that is not worthy to stand beside his best.

Tagore was born on the 6th of May, 1861, in Calcutta. He was born into that great rumbling mansion at Jorasanko, in the heart of Calcutta's teeming life. No home could of a poet, if he must be born in a city and away from the spaces and forests.

His School Days.

Dr. Tagore told us when he was lecturing in Singapore that he had refused to go to school. We now get confirmation of this picture here. "His first experiences of school distressed him." Again: "Rabindranath declined to be 'educated'." And then he set off on his travels with his father and saw more of India than many boys compass in a life time.

It was on his return that he put into effect his magnificent powers of passive resistance, and won the first of his many victories. He was sent to the Bengal Academy, and then to St. Xavier's, but his resolve refused to be educated stood proof against authority and blandishment and he was allowed to study at home.

Santiniketan.

The remembrance of his own early life determined Dr. Tagore to found his own school when he should be able to, and to raise funds for its further work is the main reason for his present tour, and explains why we were privileged to see him in our midst so recently. But, as Thompson remarks, the poet planned much more than a school. He sought a home for the spirit of India, distracted and torn by the conflicting storms of the age. The unity of India has been a dream present with some of her greater sons. Here he felt it might begin to be realised with a completeness hitherto unattained. At Santiniketan all creeds and religions will be studied, all literatures, and the modern scientific achievements of East and West alike. The University will purchase or sell, construct, maintain, found, initiate, organise or assist and generally deal in or with the following: Buildings and building materials; food-stuffs;

30,000 MILES TO FIND "TYPES."

EXPLORER-ARTIST IN
PICTURES.

Roland Strasser, whose name will surely occupy a niche in the history of the world's art, has returned to his home in Vienna for a rest after another 30,000-miles journey up and down Central Asia, which he began in the autumn of 1924. Of the 260 paintings and drawings with which he arrived at Peking in January this year, mostly made in the wilds of Mongolia, the bulk were wondrously destroyed by Chinese soldiers, and he brought only 46 to Europe. There were taken to London for exhibition in Paris. Herr Strasser has a compelling personality, and since the two exhibitions of earlier paintings in London in 1924, first for a week at the Austrian Legation and then at the Paterson Gallery in Bond-street, his genius has been acknowledged. When you talk to Herr Strasser—with his rugged features, earnest humour, and steady eyes—you are not surprised to find that he is a pioneer in pictorial art, with a style exclusively his own. He literally lays on his colours with his palette knife to get effects he desires.

Escape From Red Prison.

His London exhibition in 1924 comprised drawings and paintings from New Guinea, Bali, Siam, North China, and Ceylon, as well as Tibet and Mongolia. He became known in London immediately after the war, when he sold a number of still earlier pictures, mostly made in the Sudan, for £4,000, and he spent the money on the tour that ended in 1924. His route to Urga, the capital of Mongolia, on this last journey was Bombay-Calcutta-Darjeeling-Tibet. In Urga, he describes as entirely under Russian Bolshevik influence, he remained for more than a year, then fled hurriedly on horseback, with two coolies bringing his precious work and other belongings, including a tent, on a truck to Kalgan, across the vast desert to Gobi. He had been imprisoned for five days at Urga simply because someone denounced him as anti-Bolshevik, and obtained no food except a quantity of dirty rice, sitting in a filthy cellar with 50 other suspects or convicts. He was released through the efforts of a Russian interpreter who spoke some English and whom he was able to pay for his services.

Comfort In Native Dress.

Herr Roland Strasser was born in 1896, though in spite of the hardships he has suffered he does not look his age. His father, the Austrian sculptor, Arthur Strasser, is a Spaniard from the Basque country who became a naturalised Austrian and changed his name to Quirquez to Strasser. He speaks English almost as well as German, but he has never found "time to waste" learning native languages in Mongolia, though he wore the coarse native clothing "because it is more comfortable."

He searches always for "types," induces them to sit for him, and makes portraits that seem to think and breathe. Trained first for a year by his father as a sculptor, he went to the academy at Munich for three years and became a painter. His work is, therefore, curiously stereoscopic in quality.—Daily Mail.

raw or manufactured; printing, publishing, type-founding, book-binding; books, manuscripts, libraries; pictures, statues, inscriptions and objects of artistic and antiquarian interest; musical instruments and accessories; textile machinery and products; bricks, tiles, pottery and china-ware; mills, foundries and workshops; for working in metal, wood, or other materials; co-operative stores; dairies and creameries; banks and all forms of association dealing in credit.

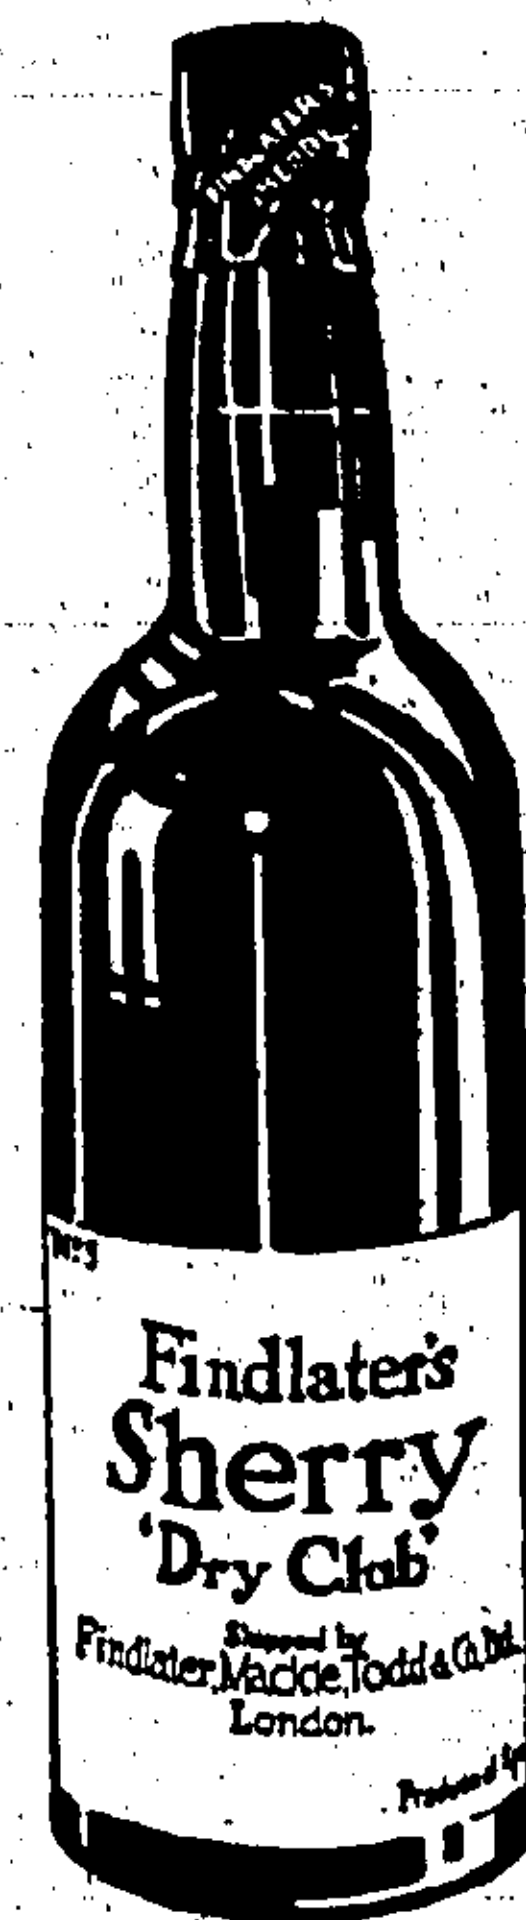

A Personal Impression.

I have left little space to deal with the many phases of the poet's life and work which Professor Thompson brings before us so clearly. But it is remarkable that Dr. Tagore told me very much that is reported in this book when I was privileged to meet him at the bungalow in Siglap where he was staying. The great Indian was tired, tired; one could feel it. "They give me no rest, you know," he said. "In Chicago there was a certain Mrs. ... and she protected me; but in other places I am at the mercy of my friends, and without meaning to they persecute me." Asked by Professor Thompson how long he expected to live, Dr. Tagore replied: "I shall die at 63." And this, apparently is what is written in his horoscope.

Personally, I must hope with so many others, that Dr. Tagore will allow himself a little rest and that the world will have the chance of enjoying his presence for many years more. He is nearly 68 now!

THE CITY OF SYMPHONY.

A REMARKABLE GERMAN FILM.

THE LIFE STORY OF BERLIN.

A film which was shown recently in Berlin seems to justify the portentous seriousness with which the cinema is regarded in Germany. It is entitled Berlin, the City Symphony. It is an honest attempt to present the life and rhythm of a capital city during 24 hours, honest because the producer of this film has not tried to give unity and "popular appeal" to a series of disconnected scenes by stringing them together on the thread of a personal story. There is no plot in the ordinary sense. A train rushes over the open country and reaches the city terminus. There follow scenes of the street, empty in the light of early morning except for a piece of paper blowing to and fro, or water running in the gutter. A cat creeps out. Shutters begin to go up. Workmen go into the factories. We see the crowds, on the underground railway, children going to school, all sorts and conditions of people leaving their homes, offices beginning work, the traffic and a hundred incidents in the street, the luncheon interval, people bathing, rowing and riding in the afternoon. Finally the sky signs blaze, people go to hear Beethoven, or see a revue, or drink beer in bars, or sell matches in the gutter.

The producer has not lost sight of the fact that the subject of the film is the city itself, as an individual organism, so that inanimate things and animals are treated not merely as a background to human beings but on equal terms. The result is extraordinarily impressive. Machines, houses, articles in shop windows, partly because of the skill with which they are photographed and partly by being perfectly fitted to their context, acquire vitality and significance.

The other factor in achieving the remarkable unity of this film is the music, written by Edmund Meisel, which is very successfully synchronized with the film by means of an instrument called the music chronometer, invented after years of experiment by Herr Carl Robert Blum.

EX-ACTIVE SERVICE MEN'S ASSOCIATION.

ANNUAL ARMISTICE DINNER HELD LAST NIGHT.

INTERESTING SPEECHES.

There were fully 300 present, including members and guests, at the annual Armistice Dinner of the Ex-Active Service Men's Association, held at Volunteer Headquarters last night. The hall was tastefully decorated with flags and the tables attractively laid with Flanders' poppies for each member of the large assembly.

Several appropriate speeches were delivered, all bearing on the fine co-operation of the Services and the bonds of fellowship and unity formed during the long drawn out agony of the Great War and the need for a continuance of this fellowship to ensure the peace and well-being of a strong and united Empire.

The function proved most successful and enjoyable, with a fine evidence of camaraderie and good fellowship.

Lieut.-Colonel F. Hayley Bell, D.S.O., President of the Association, presided. Others present were:—H.E. the Officer Administering the Government, the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, C.M.G., Commander J. L. Pearson, C.M.G., Col. C. Russell Brown, D.S.O., Major R. A. Wolfe-Murray, D.S.O., M.C., Lieut.-Col. W. C. P. Russell, D.S.O., Lieut.-Col. R. G. Clarke, C.M.G., D.S.O., Col. Sir Victor Mackenzie, Bt., D.S.O., M.V.O., Major J. Macready, D.S.O., Major F. C. Roberts, V.C., D.S.O., O.B.E., M.C., Squadron Commander Macpherson, Capt. Whyte, A.D.C. to H.E., Lieut. R. Q. F. Johnson, A.D.C. to the G.O.C., Paymaster-Commander H. Rogers, the Hon. Mr. W. E. L. Shenton, the Hon. Mr. E. R. Hallifax, C.M.G., Mr. J. W. Franks, Mr. J. H. Seth, Mr. H. J. Bragg, Mr. J. E. Mackenzie, Vice-Presidents of the Association, Mr. E. S. Carter, Chairman, E.A.S.M.A., Mr. C. L. Edwards, Vice-Chairman, and Mr. R. J. Hunt, Hon. Secretary.

After dinner, Lieut.-Col. Hayley Bell submitted the Loyal Toast, which was followed by the "Silent Toast," during which a bugler of the 2nd K.O.S.B. sounded the "Last Post" and the "Reveille."

THE SERVICES COMRADESHIP.

Submitting the toast of the Services, Commander G. B. Hartford, R.N. (retired), said that memories of the war were growing dim in their minds, but there was one thing which stood out as much as ever: it did, one thing of which the gathering present was a magnificent illustration, and that was the sense of comradeship and mutual understanding and respect which existed between the sister Services. This was due to a great extent to their mutual and close co-operation during the war. (Applause.) The sense of comradeship reached at that time would remain with them during the remainder of their lives, and he ventured to predict it would pass on to those who succeeded them. The speaker congratulated the Ex-Active Service Men's Association on having such an efficient leader as Lieut.-Col. Hayley Bell, whose leadership had contributed in no small measure to the present efficient state of affairs. He also spoke of the fine work which had been accomplished by the Hon. Secretary of the Association, Mr. R. J. Hunt, who had spared himself in his labours on behalf of the "Easmas." (Applause.)

REPLY FOR THE NAVY.

Replying on behalf of the Navy, Commodore J. L. Pearson, C.M.G., said that their President, Col. Hayley Bell, was associated with a Regiment which had come into very close touch with the Navy, and had been for years and he hoped that the close connection would be continued for many years to come.

They were commemorating that night the first Armistice Day and when he looked back to often wondered what their feelings were when they realised that the war was finished. They had all lost something in the war, relatives, or friends, whom it appeared were irreplaceable. The country was heavily in debt, the outlook was none too bright, but at the present time they could see that they had taken hold and tackled their many difficult problems with the same spirit as they had during the war period. There was no doubt in his mind but that they would emerge a stronger and more united nation (applause). In other ways they had gained something from the experience of that time.

After referring to the Services' co-operation during the war, Commodore Pearson said that many lasting friendships had been formed in the trying period from 1914-1918. Those friendships, formed during a period of stress, should never be permitted to fade away. The speaker went on to refer to necessary economies that took place after the war, and said how they were endeavouring to produce an efficient Navy with a reduced force. As the policeman of the seas, the Navy could not cope with all its duties unless it had the co-operation and assistance of the other Services, to whom he paid a warm tribute.

The country had been accused of deteriorating, but so long as the spirit of determination which had enabled it to carry on during the war remained they need have no fear of their country's future (applause). "The Navy," the Commodore concluded, "raises its glass to Service members." (Applause.)

FOR THE ARMY.

Col. C. Russell Brown, replying to the toast on behalf of the Army, said he was sure they would all regret that the General was unable to be present. His wife and charming daughter had arrived from England that afternoon, and he had asked the speaker to assure the gathering that he took the liveliest interest in the Association.

Continuing, Col. Russell Brown said that when he found that the General could not attend he thought all he had to do would be to appeal to the Commodore on the subject of co-operation and let him reply to the toast for both Services. The "Silent Service" was silent, however, and the appeal fell on deaf ears.

After a good dinner a speaker was inclined to become a little talkative. His difficulty was to know what to talk about, although he could indulge in reminiscences a bit. Recalling his early Army days he said that since that time a change for the better had come over the Army. He could not help thinking that they had progressed, as there was now a good deal more camaraderie. They used to think that when anyone reached the rank of Colonel he was "a hell of a fellow with a hell of a liver, whom you would be afraid to approach before lunch—anyway you would expect to live on cayenne pepper—a man of the freckled type, the kind pictured by Bateman. During the war they found, few of that type, and if there were any they were young men of the explosive type found among the budding young Napoleons. (Laughter.)

"CHURCHILL'S INNOCENT VICTIMS."

Proposing the toast of the Visitors, Mr. C. L. Edwards, vice-chairman of the Association, said that during the war there was a saying that old soldiers never died. It was a gathering representative of old soldiers then it took them an extraordinarily long time to fade away. (Laughter.) He thought the gathering was a record one, not only in attendance but by the distinguished company of guests. They were honoured by the presence of H.E. the Officer Administering the Government. That was a signal honour on that red letter day because they could say they had entertained the highest in the Colony.

There were present several distinguished members of that elusive force, the Shanghai Defence Force, which came out and found it had to sit on concrete floors. They as ex-Service men could appreciate what the "Shaforce" had had to put up with when they first arrived. (Laughter.)

He had heard a good deal of the operations of Naval men on land. He joined the Navy in the early days of 1914 as an A.B. and a not very able one, and proceeded with the C.I.V.'s (Churchill's Innocent Victims) to Antwerp. (Laughter.) He thought there the Naval forces found that Fritz had the matter shrouded up a good deal better than they thought.

Concluding, Mr. Edwards expressed the Association's pleasure in having the company of so many distinguished guests.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S REPLY.

H.E. the Officer Administering the Government, the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, replying on behalf of the Visitors, said he had one regret. It was that he had to speak in the place of a much more distinguished officer, and he was very sorry that Sir Cecil Clementi was not there to charm them with his eloquence as they knew he would. He was sure that if he was not there in the flesh he was in the spirit and would wish him to say how much he (Sir Cecil) had the welfare of the Association at heart. Although they were not all members, and perhaps some not entitled to be members, they would like to share with them that great day, the greatest day, he thought, in the history of the British Empire.

Fellowships Of The War.

The fellowship formed during the war was different from any fellowship which existed in the British Empire. It was the privilege of associations like this "E.A.S.M.A." to keep alive and strengthen that fellowship and see that it should never die. To many of them the war was the greatest event of their lives, and Armistice Day was a landmark of that long drawn out agony. It was well that they should join together once each year and commemorate that day—commemorate it with prayer and with thanksgiving—prayer for the future of lessons learned and thanksgiving for the mercies of the past and for the Armistice Day that brought the war to a close.

It was emblematic of Armistice Day that they had the "Last Post" sounded at the commemorative service and "Reveille" sounded later to mark the dawn, which that Armistice Day heralded.

Lessons Learned.

He thought it was Lord Reading who said it was never well to look back unless to learn a lesson for the future. That was one of the occasions on which he thought it was well to look back and learn a lesson. They had learned the lesson that war with all its horrors could produce forms of friendship which united all men in great and glorious endeavour. They also learned that in that get-together spirit victory could be achieved, but it must be remembered that victories did not belong only to war. The victories of peace had in many cases yet to be won and unless they continued those same bonds of friendship and co-operation which helped to win the war, they would never succeed in winning the victories of peace. In peace as in war petty jealousies and personal ambitions which would wreck any campaign had to be put aside.

Hard Times In Troubled Peace.

In this beautiful island of Hong Kong considerable hardships had been suffered in the troublous days of peace. There were few who had not felt the pinch during these troubled times. It was in such times that an Association such as the E.A.S.M.A. could prove its worth. It had many claims on its generosity and those claims had been met. Hard times tended to keep an association together but it should be remembered that the cloying times of peace were apt to make members forgetful. An association might find its funds sinking and itself going to decay. To prevent this an association required the right person at the head and in that, hardy warriors, Lieut.-Col. Hayley Bell, they had selected the right person as the head of the Association. So long as he was there the cloying days of prosperity would have no effect on the Association. (Applause.)

Proposing the toast of the organisation, His Excellency said the Association was inspired by the highest ideals—ideals which he had not the slightest doubt that the officers and members would keep ever in view, and so long as they kept them in view the Association would continue to flourish. Its activities were manifold and wonderful.

HELPING OTHERS.

Lieut.-Col. Hayley Bell, replying, said the E.A.S.M.A. was a hazardous collection of ex-Service men who took part in the war. He had been astonished to find the enormous amount of ground they had covered. There were 450 members representing 93 units. Almost every regiment in the Army was represented, together with men from the Dominions and Colonies and also from that great unit of the British Empire, the Mercantile Marine. (Applause.) They had been able to help ex-Service men down on their luck, and they tried very hard to keep up the spirit bred during the war. Armistice Day was the great day of the year and they made something of it. He thought that although they had 450 members they should have more.

Concluding, the speaker proposed a toast to the Hon. Mr. Southern which was honoured with enthusiasm, His Excellency briefly replying.

During dinner, and later the Band of the 2nd K.O.S.B., under the baton of Mr. W. H. Fitz-Earle, A.R.C.M., played excellent selections, several being reminiscent of the War, and the choruses of which were heartily taken up.

After the toasts had been duly honoured, an excellent concert was held, the artists contributing being Mr. T. G. Paterson, Mr. E. Gardner, Mr. Andrews, Mr. R. A. Green, Mr. R. Dormer and Mr. V. Blundell.

THE Y'S CLUB DINNER.

The Y's Club, an organization of younger Chinese business men of Hong Kong, including a number of graduates of American and British universities, held a very successful dinner party at the Kaping Restaurant last evening in celebration of the Armistice. The dinner was arranged by Mr. Li Siu Pak, a secretary of the Chinese Y.M.C.A.

LONDON'S ARMISTICE CELEBRATIONS.

TAKE PLACE IN SUNNY, FROSTY WEATHER.

ROYALTY PRESENT.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

Sunny frosty weather favoured the Armistice Day Celebrations in London.

Their Majesties, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York and other Royalties, Members of the Cabinet, and representatives of the Dominions participated in the impressive ceremony at the Cenotaph. The two minutes' silence was everywhere scrupulously observed, and the wearing of Flanders' poppies was universal.

In his broadcast appeal, the Prince of Wales yesterday evening urged all to "give a little more than they gave last year." Other appeals, including those of Earl Haig, evoked a magnificent response. Sellers of poppies started work at midnight outside the House of Commons and the West End.

GRIZZLY BEAR CENSUS.

A NATIONAL MUSEUM'S EFFORT.

PRINCE RUPERT, Oct. 6th. One of the strangest attempts at taking a census is now being made, at the request of Harlan I. Smith, of the National Museum of Canada. It is nothing less than a census of the grizzly bear population of some eleven valleys along the fjords which are included in the "Norway of America" traversed on the steamship journey between Prince Rupert and Vancouver.

The coast line between these two ports is a noted big game hunting spot and attracts many grizzly hunters each year from all sections of the continent as well as from other parts of the world. Trappers and hunters in this region which is in and about Mackenzie Park, named for the famous adventurer-explorer, have been asked to make a careful record of the number of grizzlies they encounter on their journeys through the forested slopes of the mountains.

This work has been going on for some time and the reports from the "men of the woods" are now in the hands of Mr. Wilsden, who is compiling them and will shortly announce the result.

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATIONS.

SERVICE AT THE CATHEDRAL.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT THE CENOTAPH.

SUCCESSFUL SALE OF POPPIES.

AMOUNT COLLECTED FOR EARL HAIG'S FUND EXPECTED TO ESTABLISH A RECORD.

Armistice Day was celebrated in Hong Kong in the customary manner yesterday, but the sale of poppies was even more successful than usual and it is hoped, when all amounts have been received, that a record sum will have been raised this year for Earl Haig's Poppy Day Fund.

There was a largely attended service at St. John's Cathedral in the morning following which wreaths were placed on the Cathedral War Memorial. The scene at the Cenotaph during the two minutes silence was very impressive. All the naval and military forces in the Colony were represented. H.E. the Officer Administering the Government placed a wreath on behalf of the Government and his tribute was followed by many others until the base of the Cenotaph was one mass of flowers.

In addition to the sales of poppies in the streets there were auctions at various clubs and although exact figures are not available the following approximate amounts have been realised:

STREET SALES, HONG KONG.....	$4,200
STREET SALES, KOWLOON.....	$1,500
U.S.R.C. FETE.....	$1,200
HONG KONG CLUB AUCTION.....	$1,530
KOWLOON C.C. AUCTION.....	$1,100

Even these sums amount to more than half of the total of $18,000 obtained last year and as there are many more to come in there is little doubt about last year's record being passed.

Armistice Day was, of course, a holiday. All banks and business offices were closed and after mid-day many cricket, golf and football matches were played. At Fanling and Kowloon golf courses guns were fired to announce the two minutes' silence and play ceased. Wreaths were also placed on the Fanling War Memorial.

AT THE CATHEDRAL.

AN IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

The commemoration service at St. John's Cathedral was largely attended. In addition to many members of the general public there was a representative gathering of naval and military units, ex-service men, and others. The Ex-Service men's parade was particularly strong, and their medals and war ribbons made a brave display.
The members of the Ex-Active Service Men's Association were headed by Lieut.-Col. F. Hayley
Bell and the members of the Hong Kong Branch of the British Legion
by Lieut.-Col. G. K. Hall Brutton.
The military detachments were from the Queen's Royal Regiment and the King's Own Scottish Borderers. There were also Naval units, Royal Marines and Royal Air Force detachments.

H.E. the Officer Administering
the Government (the Hon. Mr. W.
T. Southern, C.M.G.) accompanied by his A.D.C., and Capt. Forster (Private Secretary), arrived a few minutes before the service began.
There were also present Mrs.
Southern, H.E. the General Officer Commanding South China Command (Major-General C. C. Luard, C.B., C.M.G.); Col. Sergison-Brooke, and members of the Legislative and Executive Councils.
The service of dedication and remembrance was conducted by the Rev. H. Copley Moyle, assisted by the Rev. N. V. Halyard, the Rev.
W. R. Cannell, the Rev. G. F.
Stopford, C.F., the Rev. G. E. S.
Upsell, the Rev. W. Walton Rogers,
the Rev. C. B. Shana, and the Rev.
W. H. Hewitt.

The service opened with the singing of the processional hymn "Thy Kingdom Come O God."

THE ADDRESS.

The Rev. L. Webb, Chaplain to the Forces, gave the address. For many generations to come, he said,
November 11th would be amongst those days which were called and felt to be special. It was very fitting that Christian men and women should congregate in the Churches, or at the War Memorial or Cenotaph to return heartfelt thanks to Almighty God for the renewed blessings of peace and for the example of those who gave us
such a wonderful lesson of courage, true manliness, endurance and brotherly love, coupled with ardent loyalty to our Sovereign Lord the King.

We did well and rightly in sounding a sincere note of gratitude but he fancied that we must have in mind that the dominating note was becoming more and more that of memorial. We were thanking God for those who by their self-sacrifice made peace possible. We were thanking God for what they did

and praying that they might rest in peace in that place where they now were—in the nearer presence of God—and that the Holy Spirit might comfort the hearts of those who mourned their loss.

But would that suffice? The cost was so tremendous; a great peril was past and a whole company had marched from victory to Paradise,
and what would the world do?
The spirit of love so abundantly shown in our Lord's life was not always in evidence even now.
There was much that was loveless,
bitter and indifferent—much that was foreign to God's laws and to that magnificent example of comradeship given to the world by those who in life and indeed in the hour of death stood side by side
and shared alike.

Should there not be greater care
and remembrance of those who were permanently disabled and of those who lost their sight? Should there not be greater care for those on whose breasts were tokens that for God and freedom they stood between us and the enemy. They were suffering to-day and we could help to ease that suffering by giving of those things which they needed. But could we not do even more? To-day, gathered together in this Cathedral Church thinking of these things, must we not give ourselves afresh to God?

To remember these brave souls
and to express our thanks in words
would not be all that was necessary. Very soon we would take our part with others in that great corporate act of worship when the Empire and many other countries were shocked into silence. What a time, when millions of our fellow beings were praying; to reconsecrate ourselves to God, to resolve that our lives must be more worthy of those we were commemorating.
What better way could we find than by service to the Empire they died for.

What better way was there of accomplishing this than for each and everyone to consecrate themselves afresh and then to see to it that the children of to-day were brought up to have a devouring love for their country and their King and to know that the best service they could render the Empire and its Head was to be a race of God-fearing men and women.

Thus, by a realising of our lives to God, might we as an Empire
show the world that all the bitter sorrow, all the suffering, all the dreadful waste of young lives, all the sacrifice, privation and endurance, have taught us their lesson
and that in the future we are resolved to be a more godly nation
than ever before, absolutely determined that we will never allow anything to interfere with our duty to our God and our King, but indeed, in humble gratitude to try

AT THE CENOTAPH.

A WEALTH OF FLORAL TRIBUTES.

The solemn and dignified ceremony at the Cenotaph at 11 a.m.
was witnessed by a great crowd of Europeans and Chinese. Hundreds of people stood behind the police barriers around the memorial, and the verandahs of the Courts of Justice, Hong Kong Club and adjacent office buildings were filled.

H.E. the Officer Administering
the Government, in uniform, accompanied by Capt. White, A.D.C. and Capt. Forster, arrived at 10.40
and was joined at the southern position facing the Cenotaph by Sir H. C. Gollan, Sir Joseph Kemp, Sir Shouson Chow, the Hon. Mr. C. McI. Messer, the Hon.
Mr. E. R. Hallifax, the Hon. Mr.
H. T. Jackman, the Hon. Mr. E.
D. C. Wolfe, the Hon. Dr. R. H.
Kotewall, the Hon. Mr. J. Owen
Hughes, the Hon. Mr. W. E. L.
Shenton, His Honour Mr. Justice
J. R. Wood and Mr. R. E. Lindsell.

Grouped around the Cenotaph were detachments from Naval and Military units. These included representatives from the Royal Artillery (Heavy Batteries), 4th Light Brigade, Royal Engineers, Royal Signals, Scots Guards, Queen's Royal Regiment, 2nd K.O.S.B., H.K.S. Bde. R.A., R.A.S.C., R.A.M.C., R.A.O.C., R.A.F., 5/2nd
Punjab Regt., and the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps (represented by a detachment from the Scottish Company). There were also present Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, British Legion, Ex-Active Service Men's Association, St. John Ambulance Brigade, representatives of the Foreign Government and Consular Services, the R.A.O.B., Mercantile Marine and Old Comrades' Association of Royal Marines. The parade numbered altogether over 400.

The pipers from the K.O.S.B.
were on the Western side of the Cenotaph, the band of the K.O.S.B.
on the North and the buglers from the Queen's Royal Regiment on the East side.

Shortly before 11 a.m. the pipers
played "Flowers of the Forest,"
and then buglers sounded the "Last Post." Scarcely had the last note of the bugles died away when the signal gun boomed from Murray Parade Ground denoting the beginning of the two minutes' silence.
After the two minutes a second gun was fired. The buglers sounded the "Reveille," and then, led by the band, all present joined in singing "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

Wreaths Laid.

H.E. the Governor laid a wreath
at the base of the plinth on behalf of the Colonial Government, Col.
Hayley Bell and Lieut.-Col. Hall
Brutton deposited beautiful wreaths from the Ex-Active Service Men's Association and the British Legion.
H.E. the General Officer Commanding (Major-General C. C. Luard, C.B., C.M.G.) and Commodore J.
L. Pearson, C.M.G., laid wreaths on behalf of the Army and Navy, and the Royal Air Force added a lovely tribute in the shape of wings surmounted by a Crown. Wreaths were also brought by all the Naval and Military units, by the Mercantile Marine, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, and others, until the whole base of the Cenotaph was surrounded with flowers.

ample of our Master and of those of whom it is truly said: "Their name liveth for evermore."

Kipling's Recessional, followed the address, during which a collection was taken on behalf of St.
Dunstan's Hostel for Blind
Soldiers and Sailors.

Then came the "Last Post," followed by the "Reveille," the service being concluded with the National Anthem and the Blessing.

The War Memorial.

The Choir and Clergy, followed by H.E. the Officer Administering the Government and the congregation, then proceeded to the Cathedral War Memorial, where His Excellency placed a wreath.

FLANDERS POPPIES.

A BRISK SALE REPORTED.

From an early hour yesterday
Flanders Poppy sellers, young and old, were busy on the streets and a brisk sale was done. Every one,
as usual, wore a poppy.

There were altogether about 150
ladies selling the token in Hong Kong and Kowloon and they disposed of a stock of some five thousand. Ships which left port just prior to Armistice Day were supplied with poppies and all merchant and passenger ships in port were visited.

When all amounts collected have been received it is expected that the contribution from Hong Kong to Earl Haig's Fund will exceed that of last year, which was about $18,000. Exact figures could not be stated yesterday, but it was known that the street collection in Hong Kong realised about $4,200, and in Kowloon $1,500.

To be added to these sums are the amounts raised by various organisations on behalf of the Fund.
As reported, yesterday the United Services Club fete yielded $1,200.
An auction at the Hong Kong Club,
yesterday morning realised $1,400.
Then there are the contributions from Repulse Bay, Kowloon Dock and Tai Koo Dock, who arranged their own collections. In addition fairly substantial sums are expected from the Charity Football match
yesterday, the Café Regent Carnival, and the Civil Service Cricket Club, from the Kowloon Cricket Club auction held last night, and from the Victoria Recreation Club Carnival Dance, to be held this evening. It seems certain, therefore, that the $18,000 mark will be easily passed.

The City Hall presented a busy scene yesterday afternoon when bank shroffs were engaged in counting and checking the collections,
assisted by members of the organising committee.

A large number of the Chinese community were to be seen wearing poppies.

AT THE HONG KONG CLUB.

At the Hong Kong Club the customary auction of a Poppy Day poster was held, and subsequently all manner of other articles were put up for sale. As stated the total amount realised was approximately $1,400.

The auction was conducted by Engineer-Lieut. Commander A. S.
Reddell, who was assisted by Mr.
W. Logan, as accountant.

The poster was first sold for $110 was then re-sold for $250, and afterwards fetched another $250. Then followed the auction of other articles. A bottle of Haig's whisky ultimately realised $90, after being auctioned twice, another bottle realised $85.

A sovereign, attached to which was a poppy, was offered for auction by a visitor from Shanghai. This realised $100. Following the auction of a small picture the purchaser insisted, upon paying in sterling, namely the sum of £5.

AT THE KOWLOON CRICKET CLUB.

The usual auction of the Poppy
Day poster, together with other articles, took place at the Kowloon Cricket Club last evening. Last year the auction of the poster realised $400.
The total sum realised yesterday was very gratifying, amounting to approximately $1,100.

ARMISTICE DAY.

THE CELEBRATION
IN LONDON.IMPRESSIVE SCENE AT THE CENOTAPH.THE KING AND PRINCES PRESENT.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

Receiv. Nov. 11th.

The great crowd that assembles in Whitehall on Armistice Day is like no other crowd that London knows throughout the year. It assembles and stands in silence and its perfect quietness is a measure of deep emotions which are stirred in British hearts and which are mellowed but undiminished by the passage of nine years.

In the early hours of this morning people began to gather near the Cenotaph which had already been loaded with wreaths sent by British communities overseas as far distant as Sao Paulo, Brazil, and Rhodesia and long before service began Whitehall was again a mass of un-mov-ing and noiseless humanity.

The same simple ceremonial as in previous years was followed.

Ten minutes before it began, the King arrived and stood between his sons in hollow square around the Cenotaph formed by service and ex-service detachments. He stepped forward laid his wreath at the base of the Cenotaph, after which others were laid by Princes, members of the Government, representatives of the Services and from Overseas.

Then with the firing of signals came two minutes' silence.

As it ended, the bugle notes of "Last Post" sounded and then the crowd, led by choirs and massed Guards' bands, sang "O God our Help."

The service ended with the National Anthem.

Then began the long and reverent pilgrimage to the Cenotaph by patient queues of peoples to lay their wreaths at its base.

Meanwhile, a service had been held at the tomb of the Unknown Warrior in Westminster Abbey and in innumerable churches throughout the country.

Throughout the whole Empire and in British communities abroad silence was observed. This year for the first time Canberra, the new capital of Australia, was the scene of the Australian celebration.

The "Old Contemptibles."

A party of more than 200 members of the "Old Contemptibles" Association, members of the original British Expeditionary Force in the Great War, observed two minutes' silence to-day at the spot where they first came into contact with the Germans during the war. Thus yearly, since the armistice nine years ago, representatives of British soldiers who were in the Battle of Mons, have commemorated it on the spot they themselves made famous.

The Sale Of Poppies.

Everywhere in Britain, as in many other parts of the Empire, Flanders' poppies, sold to aid the funds of the British Legion, were worn in remembrance of those who survived the war only to suffer in death and misfortune from its effects.

Last night the Prince of Wales, in a moving speech, appealed for this cause. He mentioned that the sale of poppies which in the first year—1921—had produced £100,000 had risen annually until last year £435,000 was given. This year he asked for £500,000.

The poppies are made at a special factory where only disabled ex-servicemen are employed.

To-night, during the remembrance festival in the Albert Hall, the Prince of Wales will give a short address, which will be relayed throughout the Empire by short-wave telephony. The United States will also attempt to intercept and relay speech.

THE MERCHANT
VOLUNTEERS.MOVEMENT TO BE REVIVED.RECOGNITION BY CANTON AUTHORITIES.

[FROM OUR CHINESE CORRESPONDENT.]

Troop transports are coming into Canton Harbour daily and to prevent bandits entering under guise of military units, the Water Police have been instructed to observe closely all arrivals. A large force is expected from Swatow.

After being under a ban for three years the merchants' volunteer movement is again being recognised by the Authorities. The people are to be encouraged to defend their own communities, and a meeting of representatives of village and towns will shortly be called to consider a scheme for re-organising local militia to supplement the Military and Police for the preservation of public peace and order in the Province.

The merchants volunteers were once very powerful and they did a great deal to put down brigandage and piracy. For a time the volunteers had an armed strength of 130,000 in 83 different districts of Kwangtung under the chief command of Mr. Chan Lim Pak, a former president of Canton General Chamber of Commerce. This splendid organisation was forcibly disbanded on October 13th, 1924, by order of the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen.

General Chiang Kai Shek has arrived at Shanghai and will attend the Central Executive Committee meeting of the Kuomintang when it is held there. He arrived at Shanghai on Thursday accompanied by a following of eleven.

Mr. L. C. Lee having expressed a desire to resign from the position of Commissioner of Industry, Mr. Poon Tat Mui, of the Nanyang Brothers Tobacco Company is being mentioned as his probable successor.

Mr. Poon is well-known in Canton and Hong Kong as the advertising manager for the Nanyang Brothers Company. He has also interested himself in philanthropic work and was for a time a director of the Orphanage at Fati, Canton.

Mr. Kan Nei Kuang, a member of the Kuomintang Central Executive Committee, assumed his new duties as acting Mayor of Canton on November 10th.

Proprietors of shops may work any time they like upon their own premises, according to a new ruling of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Labour in Canton. For the last two years, since the ascendancy of the labour leaders, working hours have been regulated by union order.

HONG KONG CHINESE NEWSPAPERS.

To-day, November 12th, no Chinese newspaper belonging to the Hong Kong Chinese Press Association will be issued. The proprietors granted a holiday to the workers in honour of the Armistice Day yesterday. To-day is the anniversary of the birth of the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen.

CANTON STUDENTS IN HONG KONG.

GUESTS OF S' CHINA A.A.

VISIT TO TAIKOO DOCK.

Mr. Lee Hysan, president of the South China Athletic Association, was host at tiffin yesterday to the 1929 Class of the Chungshan University of Canton who are now visiting the Colony for educational purposes. The students have come as the guests of the South China Athletic Association.

Through the courtesy of Mr. K. E. Greig, manager of the Taikoo Dockyard and Engineering Company, the young men and women from Canton had the privilege of inspecting the ship-building yards at Taikoo on Thursday afternoon. This (Saturday) morning they will visit the University of Hong Kong. During their stay here Mr. Lee Hysan, of Lee Gardens and the Lee Theatre, has given them free entrance to these places of amusement.

REFORMS NEEDED
IN CHINA.WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEM-PERANCE UNION.MEMBERS WANT MONOGAMY ENFORCED.

A CANTON SPEAKER'S VIEW.

A dinner was held at the Union Club on Sunday by the Women's Christian Temperance Union of China to celebrate its fifth anniversary. There was a large, mixed gathering of Chinese and foreigners with two-thirds of the seats occupied by Chinese ladies. The dining hall was decorated with scrolls drawing attention to the motives of the society.

Mme. Cheng, an old friend of Dr. Sun Yat Sen when the latter was airing his revolutionary views in Honolulu, presided. In her opening address of welcome she referred to the record of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of China for the past five years, and expressed satisfaction that to-day the society has already acquired the site for a new building, has established an orphanage with facilities for industrial training, and has before it a very practical programme consisting of three resolutions: (a) That within three years China will rid herself of the opium-curse; (b) That the beggars of Shanghai be gathered together and, given a suitable turning-point in life in an asylum specially created to meet their needs; and (c) That monogamy be rigidly enforced as an inviolable law of the land.

The Beggar Evil In Shanghai.

Mrs. Herman C. E. Liu, General Secretary of the Society, furnished in the course of an eloquent address further details of the work of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. In ten years at the most, said Mrs. Liu, "we hope that monogamy will be rigidly enforced throughout China as an inviolable law. We are opposed to the opium evil because it undermines the happiness of our homes."

Emancipation Of Women.

Miss Li of the Women's Department of the Shanghai Branch of the Kuomintang expressed the full sympathy and pledged the full support of the party for the reforms contemplated by the society. She regretted to find that the campaign for the emancipation of women in China was still in its infancy but she would promise great changes to come if women would only efficiently organize themselves for group activities along efficient channels, pointing with pride to the prominence already enjoyed by women in governmental circles.

Mr. W. K. Chung, President of the Lingnan University (formerly known as the Canton Christian College), speaking in humorous vein, referred to the respective functions that men and women must respectively perform in effecting social reforms; the women were good in carrying out negative policies while the men excelled in positive policies. He feared that the women would fight a single-handed battle by trying to stop concubinage for the men will most likely be reluctant to give a helping hand.

CHINESE Y.M.C.A. AND Y.W.C.A.

A WEEK OF PRAYER.

[FROM OUR CHINESE CORRESPONDENT.]

Beginning to-morrow the Chinese Y.M.C.A. and the Chinese Y.W.C.A. of Hong Kong will hold a week of prayer, as directed by the International Committees of these worldwide organisations.

Both of these Associations will hold important meetings this evening and to-morrow evening to promote devotion to home life. Several leading Chinese residents of Hong Kong will speak at a meeting to be held in the Chinese Y.M.C.A. auditorium.

Among the speakers will be Mrs. Wong Kwok Suen, wife of the president of the National Savings and Commercial Bank. She herself is president of the Chinese Y.W.C.A. Dr. Yeung Siu Chuen, president of the anti-Muitai Society of Hong Kong, will also speak.

Beginning this evening, the Boys' Department of the Chinese Y.M.C.A. will start a campaign to enrol 1,000 boy members. The Association has now 500 boys and it wishes to double the number. This evening the boys and their elder friends will attend at banquet to talk over how to win boys into the Association. Scoutmaster Lee Wai Choy will address the boys; and four of them have been selected to head four teams to compete for the largest number of boys enrolled. The boys selected are Chiu Fan Yin, Kwok Mok Ho, Chang Siu Tong, and Yip Fu To.

HONG KONG
PENSIONS.

AMENDMENT OF RULES.

NURSING SISTERS.

It is announced in the Government Gazette that the regulations regarding pensions have been amended by the addition of the following clause.

A European nursing sister or matron, who has served not less than 3 years in the Colony, and not less than 15 years in all as a qualified nursing sister or matron in the public service or in a public hospital, in the Colony or elsewhere, to which she was appointed by the Colonial Government or through the Overseas Nursing Association and who would not otherwise be entitled to a pension, gratuity or other retiring allowance under the provisions of this Minute, may be granted on her ultimate retirement a retiring allowance calculated at the rate of 8s. 4d. per annum for each month of her service in the Colony.

Such total service need not be continuous. Provided that the above mentioned minimum total service of 15 years shall be reduced to 10 years in the case of a European nursing sister or matron who is compelled by ill-health, not caused by her own misconduct, to relinquish her Colonial employment.

Provided further that, except in the case of retirement on account of illness, no such retiring allowance shall be payable until the nursing sister or matron reaches the age of 60; and provided further that the grant of such retiring allowance shall be dependent on the production to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State of certificates of satisfactory service in respect of each period of total qualifying service, and that the total retiring allowance drawn by the nursing sister or matron in respect of service as aforesaid in the Colony and elsewhere shall not exceed the amount of pension which she would have drawn if her whole service had been on the pensionable establishment of the Colony.

These provisions will apply to all European nursing sister and matrons in the service of the Government of the Colony on or at any time after January 1st, 1928.

PENSIONS FORFEITED.

The Pension Regulations are further amended by the deletion of clause 24 and the substitution of the following therefor:—

If any person to whom a pension has been or may be granted under this Minute is convicted before any Court in His Majesty's dominions or elsewhere of any crime or offence for which he is sentenced to death, or penal servitude, or any term of imprisonment with hard labour, or any term of imprisonment of any other kind exceeding twelve months, or if any such person becomes bankrupt, then in every such case, such pension shall if the Governor-in-Council shall in each case so determine, be forfeited as from the date of such conviction or bankruptcy.

If any question arises as to the competency of any Court, or as to whether any sentence imposed comes within the intendment of the foregoing paragraph then the decision of the Governor-in-Council thereon shall be final and conclusive.

Provided always that any pension so ceasing shall be restored with retrospective effect in the case of a person who after conviction at any time receives a free pardon. For the purpose of this clause the enduring of the punishment to which any person has been or may be sentenced shall not be deemed to be or to have the effect of a free pardon.

And provided further that where any pension ceases for any reason aforesaid the Secretary of State for the Colonies or, if the pensioner is resident in the Colony then the Governor-in-Council with the approval of the Secretary of State may cause all or any part of the moneys to which the pensioner would have been entitled by way of pension, during the remainder of such pensioner's life or during any shorter period or periods either continuous or discontinuous, to be paid to or applied for the benefit of all or any exclusive of the others of the dependents of the pensioner, and the pensioner himself if and when his sentence, if any as aforesaid, shall have expired, in such proportions, if there be more than one recipient or beneficiary, and manner and subject to such conditions, qualifications and restrictions as the Secretary of State or the Governor-in-Council with such approval as aforesaid, as the case may be, may be fit to direct and impose. Any such directions, conditions, qualifications and restrictions may in like manner be revised, altered, added to or withdrawn at any time and from time to time.

In this clause "pension" includes any periodical or deferred gratuity or allowance granted under this Minute.

HONG KONG, NOVEMBER 12th, 1927

ARMISTICE DAY COLLEC-TIONS.A few weeks ago readers of the Daily Press were writing to this paper regarding the form which the celebration of Armistice Day should take. Opinions were sharply divided, as they are bound to be,
in this generation whilst so many who took part in, or suffered as a result of, the war are still with us.One correspondent wrote that as year succeeds year we should feel less and less desire to make merry on November 11th. The feeling of solemnity and awe induced by the Great Silence should not, he thought, wear away so quickly that we are willing, within a few hours, to don a false nose and beat upon a toy drum at a garden fete or midnight carnival. The poppy that we bought in the morning should not be discarded and forgotten at sundown. That is the one point of view. The other was presented by a second correspondent who suggested, with some force and sincerity, that to make Armistice Day anything other than a day of rejoicing would be to change the very meaning of the splendid anniversary. "I know of no friend of mine," he wrote, "lying now in France or on Gallipoli who would have me mournful on that day, nor would I have others so were I lying in his stead. He would hate,
I think, as I do, this morbid spirit
which, like some parasite plant, endeavours to fasten its tentacles into our tree of Recollection and to help themselves.

sap the gladness out of it—change
its green leaves to grey and wither its flowers.We shall never reconcile these widely differing opinions so that it is useless to make the attempt.The matter is one which must be left to the individual. There are probably some who have suffered deeply, who find it impossible to rejoice on Armistice Day and who are so constituted that any sign of public rejoicing on that anniversary is repugnant to them. We believe that these are a very small minority,
but even so we can respect their feelings and regret the pain which the general holiday and merry-making inflict. It is certain that as the years pass and memory fades the day will become much more of a holiday festival than it is now.But in the meantime we can meet
in one sense on common ground.
There can only be cause for satisfaction in the reflection that the day produces in a hundred and one different ways substantial sums of money which can be used to increase the comfort and brighten the lives of thousands who were maimed or injured in the war, and are still in our hospitals. It is beside the point to urge that the methods of realising this money are wasteful and extravagant, and that if each did his duty far greater sums would be forthcoming without the need for special appeal or organised attractions. We are practical enough to know that such amounts would not be obtained in any other way.In this particular case the ends certainly justify the means. We may, therefore, regard it as a matter of sincere congratulation that Hong Kong is likely to beat the record it established last year and £2,000 to help those who did, so much for others and are now unable
to help themselves.

PRISONERS.INCREASED REWARD FOR INFORMATION.

SEARCH OF THE COLONY.

DESCRIPTION OF THE MEN.

No official statement has yet been made with respect to the escape of the four prisoners from Victoria Gaol on Thursday and there is still a certain amount of mystery regarding the way in which the escape was effected. It is generally accepted, however, that the prisoners scaled the lowest part of the wall which overlooks a small lane running into Staunton Street, near the site of the old Lusitano Club.Up to yesterday evening none of the prisoners had been re-captured.
A systematic search of the whole of the Colony was carried out
during Thursday night and yesterday. Two of the men who escaped had been long inmates of the gaol
and were well known by sight to several of the European warders.
These officers were despatched in plain clothes to Aberdeen, Shan-kwan and other likely places in the hope that they might pick-up a trail, but as far as is known they have been unsuccessful.A reward of $100 was at first offered for anyone giving information which would lead to the arrest of the prisoners, and this reward has now been increased to $250.An official enquiry will be held concerning the escape of the men
in due course.Yesterday, Mr. J. W. Franks (Superintendent of Prisons) confirmed the report that one of the men was concerned in 1924 with another convict in an attempt to break out of prison by digging a tunnel from their cell towards Chancery Lane. The convict in question had only two years to serve to complete a sentence of seven years' hard labour.The finding of the parcel of clothes in the yard of the gaol was the first intimation the officials had that prisoners had escaped. It seems certain that the men had friends outside assisting them, and that these were waiting on the other side of the wall in Chancery
Lane with clothing.From the information available it would appear that the prisoners
had about an hour's start before the alarm was raised.

Prisoners' Description.

The description of the four escaped prisoners is as follows:—
Chan Chun Chau, physically a good specimen, round face, with a big wart or mole, short hair. A native of Kwang Chow Wan. He was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment under the Arms Ordinance in connection with a robbery
in 1924, and had served four years of his sentence.Ho Yiu, aged 24. Tall. Short hair. A native of the Tung Koon district. He had previously served a term of six years' imprisonment for returning to Hong Kong after being banished, and was serving a further term, for robbery, and entered the gaol on September 9th, this year.Lee Shu Kee, aged 30. Tall and of good physique. Short hair. He was serving a term of seven years' imprisonment for robbery and was put in prison in 1924.Lee Piu, the fourth man, was serving a sentence of two months for a minor offence, a breach of his convict's licence.

BRITAIN'S FOREIGN POLICY.THE PREMIER'S GUILDHALL SPEECH.

FURTHER DETAILS.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

Roses, Nov. 10th.

In accordance with usual practice the Prime Minister devoted a large part of his speech at the Guildhall banquet last night to a review of foreign affairs.He said that Britain, France, Germany and Italy, the protagonists in the struggle of yesterday,
now met as equals and partners
to advance the cause of peace and our common civilisation. He claimed for his country, and for its Government some share in this great work of appeasement and of reconciliation. But those for whom difficulties were greatest and to whom therefore the greatest credit is due are those persons living in France and Germany who have rendered this rapprochement possible. All Europe honour them and pay tribute to the services which they have rendered not only to Europe but to humanity. They have lit a candle, they have set an example and all Europe looks towards those other frontiers whose ancient enmities are still unquenched and where the ashes of old quarrels, old fears, suspicions and hatred still smoulder. All Europe asks where next will statesmen be found with the courage and breadth of vision of Dr. Stresemann and the broad humanity and devotion to peace of M. Briand. What country in the Balkans, in Central or Eastern Europe will be the first to follow their example and to earn like fame? I am an idealist and therefore an optimist. Where the road is so clearly marked, I refuse to believe that progress is beyond our reach.

Russia's Interference.

Mr. Baldwin said he wished he could speak equally hopefully of Russia, with which the Government had ceased diplomatic relations in circumstances similar to those which dictated the recent decision of the Trade Union Congress and jeopardised the continuance of diplomatic relations between France and Russia and had prevented the United States from attempting such relations. With the domestic affairs of Russia, Britain had no concern. Whenever they were prepared to observe the ordinary de-cencies of international intercourse, to abstain from interference in Britain's domestic affairs and from a policy of intrigue, they

China and Egypt.

After a passing reference to China, where he was not able to record any serious improvement and where as none of the numerous contending factions could be recognised as the paramount government of the country Britain must abide by the principles laid down
in the Memorandum of a year ago,
the Prime Minister referred to the late visit of King Fuad of Egypt and more recent visit of Egypt's Prime Minister. He proceeded:The British Government have availed themselves of these visits to discuss fully with His Excellency
the relations of our two countries.
Both have reason to be satisfied,
with the course of these conversations. We hope that they have laid the foundations on which we may presently build the firm structure of Anglo-Egyptian friendship.Referring to his own visit in company with the Prince of Wales and Prince George to Canada to the Indian flight of the Secretary for Air, to the approaching journey of the Minister for War to India, and to the visit to all Dominions which the Secretary for the Colonies was now undertaking,
Mr. Baldwin said they must be regarded as the reciprocal effort by Ministers at home in response to visits to England by Overseas Ministers attending the Imperial Conference of the last year.

TWEEDLEDEE TO TWEEDLEDAM.

Dear Tweedledam,—Time really is talking very clearly
Of winter's signals, as the year grows old;
But as our climate's tropical,
Of course it isn't topical.Nor British, to admit one might feel cold!
The best thing for rejection
Of chill is the selection
Of some debating club to keep us warm;
No bills for electricity
Or coal would dim felicity
With speech aglow on welded calm—and stern!What blaze, too, of emotion
Awakes with the devotion
Our London brothers pay to Eastern youth!
I do hope nationalities
Engaged in cordialities
Like George the Great, speak nothing but the truth!Such things arouse one's gratitude
To Nature, for the platitude
She practises, in dearth of matter grey,—
As, far from gush ecstatic,
Or phrases diplomatic,
We "tread the noiseless terror" of our way.No tinted odours hurry us,
No lives ancestral worry us,
In things descriptive, one need never give Those tautologous designations—
That stamp our conversations—
But—said the scribe—by viewpoint do we live!E.g.—Victorian seasons
Upheld such childish reasons
For choice in leaders clerical!—Men thought Theology and learning
Came first in stipend earning,
Instead of proud efficiency in Sport!Don't think I feel elation
In scornful recreation,
By these remarks!—They sound well, don't you see!
And modern partiality
To smart originality
(However false!) means Fame!—Thine

INDIAN STATUTORY COMMISSION.STATEMENT BY SIR JOHN SIMON.TO LISTEN, LEARN AND REPORT.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, Nov. 11th.

Sir John Simon, K.C., M.P., addressing his constituency, refers to the great and difficult task before the Indian Statutory Commission of which he is Chairman. He says:

"The British Parliament has a tremendous responsibility to the peoples of India. It is a responsibility which cannot be denied or evaded, for it is rooted in the history and in the facts of the world to-day. Therefore, if the future of India is to be one of peaceful progress and of goodwill both in India and in Britain this can come only by the action of the British Parliament combined with the co-operation of India itself. Both these are provided for by a scheme of which the work of the Commission is the first stage. The Commission does not go to India with any idea of imposing western ideas or constitutional reforms from without. We go to listen, to learn and faithfully to report our conclusions as to actual conditions and the varying proposals from within. When the Commission has reported, a scheme will be provided for that full and final consultation between representatives of the legislatures of India and Britain, which is essential in the connection to be fulfilled before reaching a position upon which so much depends. The task of the Commission calls for the highest qualities of sympathy and imagination as well as for endless patience, strict impartiality, industry and courage. I intensely desire to give what service I can to India and to Britain and while I am deeply conscious of my own shortcomings, I am going to do my best."

GRAFT IN NEW YORK.

PERMITS TO SELL TAINTED MILK.INSPECTORS IN PAY OF TRADESMEN.

A system of graft typical of the difficulties which municipal government in America has to fight against is revealed in a report presented to the city of New York.

It discloses that for ten years almost the whole staff of the City Health Department was organised into a corrupt body of bribe-seekers. Most of the favours sold were permits to sell tainted milk and other foods.

A new Health Commission appointed about a year ago has dismissed 45 employees for corruption. Five employees on pension have had their pensions stopped.

Judge Kelly, who has spent a year over his report, found that many sanitary inspectors had their names on the wages list of dairy-men and received regular payment. Milk dealers and others have told him that unless such payments were made business was rendered impossible for them by interminable complaints and instructions.

"Honest" Men.
The "honest" men in the department were known as "package" men, because they would receive gifts only in kind. Others received payments up to £10 a time.

A system of doubling was started, which a small dealer paid £50 for a permit to sell milk. Later on the inspector was paid £1,000 by a big dairy concern to withdraw the licence from him and some other small dealers.

"One of the biggest sources of graft was from milk and cream brought into New York from districts officially under a ban. The regular corruption rate on this was a dollar per can. Dealers who tried to evade it were made to pay a dollar and a half per can."

Harry Danziger, one of the chief inspectors, gave evidence against the secretary to the Health Commissioner and confessed that in 1924 and 1925 he had received in bribes of this sort over £20,000 and turned over 80 per cent. of it to the secretary.

Paying Scoundrels.
A highly-organised bluff upon the whole of the city authorities was carried out for five years in succession. The Department each year issued a severe report to the Finance Committee, asking for an extra appropriation to guard against outbreaks of disease. In one case it was Spanish influenza; in another it was typhus in Europe; in a third it was bubonic plague in other States of the Union.

Judge Kelly finds that in most cases these plagues did not even exist. The amount thus wasted was a million dollars.

That the root cause of this kind of graft here and elsewhere is the popular election of men to paid official positions and the awarding of employment as political pay, is clear. Judge Kelly mildly suggests that "district political leaders should be told to keep their hands off the Health Department activities in their area."

His pathetic conclusion is: "Indeed a full remedy may never be found until enough honest men can be found in the city of New York to insulate the food supply." Apparently Diogenes would need a very powerful flashlight here to-day.

He offers as the only excuse for the guilty inspectors the fact that their salaries ranged from £450 to £650 a year, a sum which he thinks—and comparison with the cost of living suggests he is right—is inadequate to put men above great temptation.—Daily News.

THE MARCONI
COMPANY.STATE OF THEIR AFFAIRS
DISCUSSED IN COURT.

THE JUDGE'S VIEW.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Nov. 10th.

The judge has confirmed the application for a reduction of the Marconi Company's capital.

LONDON, Nov. 11th.

Justice Eve, in granting the Marconi Co. their application, said that an extraordinarily careful valuation of the assets had been presented to the Court and the Company had made a strong prima facie case in support of the alleged loss of £1,625,000.

The respondents submitted that the reduction exceeded the sum which really was not represented by available assets and that the investigators had taken too pessimistic a view of the position.

His Lordship pointed out that this was only the last of a series of writings down which totalled nearly £8,000,000. It was impossible not to appreciate the shareholders' views. They had severely suffered, and they might think the loss was not altogether due to circumstances beyond the control of the management. He, therefore, allowed the inquiry to range far more widely than he would otherwise have done.

[A cable dated November 8th stated: Affidavits by Marconi Company shareholders, which it is alleged amount to charges of fraud against the directors of the company, were read in the Chancery Division at the hearing of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company's petition to write down the capital from £4,000,000 to £2,375,000, involving the reduction of the ordinary shares from 20 to 10 shillings. The spokesman of the opposition said that scheme aimed "to enable the directors by subsequent appreciation of the now artificially depreciated values, to show profits in order to justify the enormous sums they are receiving as remuneration for their services." The company's counsel, who mentioned that Sir John Marconi was too ill to attend at present, said that this was a charge of fraud of the most gross description. The hearing of the application was adjourned.]

WIRELESS TELEPHONE IN TANK.TANK "TALKS" TO ARMoured CAR.

A Tank, wonderful weapon though it is, is almost blind, deaf and dumb; its value would be quadrupled if tanks could talk to each other and their base by wireless.

The Army is taking a keen interest in the achievements of a Territorial officer, Captain K. E. Hartridge, of the 33rd (London) Armoured Car Company.

Dressed in dungarees and curled up on the floor of the seven-ton armoured car Dragon, I took part, says a correspondent to a home paper, in a three-way conversation with the armoured car Ace, about six miles away, and the van at Moulshof, 12 miles away during trials at Moulshof, Berks, of the new invention.

The noise inside an armoured car travelling along a country road at 15 miles an hour is such that you can only "talk" to the driver by putting your mouth within six inches of his ear and bawling at the top of your voice.

Wave-Length Changes.

That is one of the difficulties which have to be faced. Another and more puzzling problem is that of eliminating the constant slight changes of wavelength which the presence of trees, walls and houses is liable to introduce in a set and aerial on the move. "Fine tuning" cannot be done in a moving car, let alone a tank.

Morse would be a much easier job than telephony, but the beauty of telephony is its speed. Also a special operator is unnecessary; any member of the tank's crew can operate Captain Hartridge's instruments.

The transmitters are 30-watt affairs, and the receivers powerful seven-valve superheterodynes, with only one stage of low-frequency amplification.

Collapsible Aerial.

Padded head-phones are used, for the loudest loud-speaker would be inaudible in the din.

The aerial is simply a hollow aluminium rod, about 10 feet high. (Continued on next Column.)

MR. CHURCHILL ON THE GOVERNMENT.

A GOOD RECORD.

SPLENDID ACHIEVEMENT.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, Nov. 10th.

Mr. Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at the Constitutional Club, reviewed the record of the Government.

He said: "The Government was elected to secure stability, and with Mr. Baldwin at its head there was a belief that the nation would be given that period of repose, in order to recuperate, so long urgently needed. Three years have passed, and we have to say first of all that we have kept the peace. We have kept the peace abroad, and as far as it lay in our power, we have kept peace at home."

The three years had been a period of revival and recuperation and convalescence, both for Britain and Europe. Many would say that the progress had not been what was expected or hoped. That was undoubtedly true, but progress had been appreciable, and had been continuous. By every test one could apply the world was more secure. The prosperity of the country was more advanced, and social and economic dangers which menaced us, and still menaced us seriously, had been held at bay.

Nothing had been done which had weakened British resources, and the Government found themselves still with two years of life in this Parliament, and a better chance than it had three years ago, when it assumed the responsibility of power.

Worst Industrial Crisis.

We had passed through the very worst, and in some respects most malignant, industrial troubles which the history of this country, and of any modern state, had ever witnessed—a general strike and prolonged paralysis in the coal-fields. These two evils, he claimed, had destroyed a great part of the improvement for which one otherwise might have hoped. The coal subsidy had upset the Government's first year's finance. The strike itself had destroyed the second year's finance; and the aftermath of the strike involving the loss of between £20,000,000 and £30,000,000 revenue, overclouded the country at the present time.

That the Government had been able to come through this period without increasing direct taxation, and without restoring indirect taxation on necessities, and at the same time had not merely retained the sinking fund at £50,000,000, which was statutory, but had raised it to £85,000,000, constituted an achievement of which no-one need be ashamed.

Referring to the passing of the Trades Union Act, Mr. Churchill declared that this had been welcomed by the large majority of trades unionists themselves, as only right and fair, and it had been followed by a better spirit in industry.

On the roof of the car; with ingenious simplicity its base is fitted to an ordinary door-spring, so that when the car passes under low branches, or a bridge, the aerial simply lies down, and slowly rises when the obstacle is passed. The aerial is working all the time.

Operation seemed to be almost as simple as making an ordinary conversation, except that when you had finished speaking you called "over" and switched off the generator supplying current for the transmitting valves, while the other car to reply switched its generator on.

For some 20 minutes the Dragon's transmitter was out of action, unknown to its crew, owing to a minor defect in the microphone lead. It was both exasperating and amusing to rattle down an Oxfordshire lane listening to the Ace and headquarters discussing what had happened to us.

The Indignant Driver.

"They've probably run into the river at Shillingford, or ditched themselves," they suggested, at which our driver—40 weeks in the year a city clerk—was mightily indignant.

Under favourable conditions, the extreme range of the apparatus is about 20 miles, and a 10-mile range is always obtainable.

Captain Hartridge has not tried for more, for the greater the range, the more chance there is of the signals being picked up by the enemy. Hence the use of comparatively weak transmitters and very powerful receivers. The wave-lengths used run from 70 to 140 metres.

CRICKET.

INTERPORT XI. v. CAPTAIN MORRIS'S XI.

In perfect weather the Interport team started their match against a strong XI. of the Rest under Capt. Morris yesterday. The Rest batted first on a wicket which appeared to be a bit flaky at the Law Court end and rather dead at the other. Dobbie, from the Naval Yard, took full advantage of this and bowled uncommonly well at the stumps. His first three wickets came from the same type of ball—which swung in from leg. Thorpe was taken at second slip, Venn bowled by a ball which just chipped the off-stump and Bridgeland taken very finely at first slip—a very fast chance—off one that came right across the wickets. Wales bowled five overs quite well except that he dropped too many short. As it was, he might well have had Dynes stumped, but the ball slipped from Pearce's hand before the wicket was broken. Apart from this Dynes was batting admirably. After Dobbie got his third wicket at 33, Pearce took him off for Goodwin. Hawkey had meanwhile gone on for Wales and though he seemed to be bowling too much on the leg he was very unlucky to have Hawkey dropped at forward short leg. It was a smart chance but it should have been held and it is the sort of thing that may lose a match.

Morris is not yet out of his patch and at 41 he entirely mistimed one from Goodwin and was c and b. Goodwin, however, was bowling very much short of a length. All the same he managed to get Dynes, who obviously intended to pull the ball. Whether the ball kept lower than he expected or whether he found it was a slower one I could not quite see that he appeared to check his shot at the last and was also caught by the bowler. Pearce then went on and the ball continued to get up, Erskine tried to hit one well pitched up, but it rose sharply and he skied it to mid-off where Hawkey made no mistake. 6 for 53. Lammert drove Hawkey for four, very nearly a six, but a couple of balls later hit across and was bowled middle stump. Pearce's next ball was a long hop on the batsman's body but he did not get hold of it and put it in the air to fine leg where Dale took it running across from first slip. 5 for 63. Shaw hit Hawkey for four but immediately after tried to hook one to the square leg boundary and skied it to Fincher at square leg. 9 for 67. Reed got Pearce to leg for two nicely—the only runs scored off him. The next one, however, was a beauty and took his leg stump, after brushing his pads.

The Interport Side Bats. Hayward and Pearce opened to Erskine (Naval Yard end) and Reed. Cricket ruled quiet at first, both batsmen realizing the wicket was not one on which to fool round with off-balls. At 22 Pearce was bowled off his pad from one of Reed's which kept low. I doubt if he saw it as at the moment the sun was just getting down and while the pitch was in shadow the sun was in the batsman's eyes.

Fincher and Hayward then settled down to master the bowling. The latter played much more restrained cricket than usual and baring a half hit one off Erskine which fell twenty yards behind the bowler and a big drive off Reed (to which Bridgeland did well even to get a hand as it pitched five feet up on the screen) he was very safe. Fincher also played very steadily. About 80 he survived a confident appeal for a catch at 10. Shortly after he was nearly c and b from a hard and high return to Dynes who got a hand to it, but the chance was too hot. The separation finally came at 100 when Hayward hit a very big pulled on drive and was finely caught by Lammert fielding right out in front of the Taikoo building. His 50 was a very pretty innings. Ramsey went in and played out time. The light was fading at 5.15 p.m. and they came in with the score at 118 for two.

To Continue To-morrow. The game will be resumed at 2 p.m. to-morrow. I do not think one can usefully comment until it is over save to say that to-day's play is most encouraging. Unfortunately, Lieut. K. Hunt, R.M., owing to a slight touch of fever was unable to turn out but E. C. Fincher, who came in to the side has done very well.

Team holding my Notes on the Shanghai side over until Monday, for further information.

LEAGUE MATCHES.

"HAT TRICK" BY PORTUGUESE.

Two League matches were decided yesterday in the Second Division. In the first, the Club de Recreo beat the Hong Kong Electric Co. and in the other the University beat H.M.S. Tamar.

In the former match eight of the Electric Co. men failed to score and their total was 42 runs. This was due to the extraordinarily good bowling of the Portuguese. H. A. Alves did the "hat trick" clean bowling three men. He eventually finished with 5 wickets for 13 runs. This is the first performance of its kind this season and Alves received all round congratulations from his club-mates after the match. In addition he scored 51 runs.

CIVIL SERVICE v. ROYAL ENGINEERS.

A draw resulted in the match between the Civil Service Cricket Club second eleven and the Royal Engineers on the former's ground at Happy Valley. The Home side who batted first collected 169 runs to which total R. S. W. Paterson contributed 50 runs. He hit nine 4's. R. E. Davis made 32. Jones (R.E.) took 3 wickets for 19 runs. The Royal Engineers replied with 139 runs for 7 wickets when stumps were drawn. Major Playfair was outstanding batsman of the side, scoring 65 including ten boundaries. Grimmit was the most successful bowler taking 4 wickets for 33 runs.

CRAIGENGOWER v. POLICE.

In another match at Happy Valley, the Craigengower Cricket Club beat the Police Recreation Club by 151 runs to 92. The match was played on the Craigengower ground. E. Zimmermann, with 52, was top scorer for the home side. A. Zimmermann, his brother, following next with 33. For the Police Craig (33) and Alexander (28) helped their side materially.

YESTERDAY'S FOOTBALL.

SERVICES TROUCE THE REST.

CHARITY MATCH FOR EARL HAIG'S FUND.

The match on the H.K.F.C. ground between the Services and a team chosen from the Rest of the Colony was won by the Services by six goals to one. The Rest took the lead early in the game, when Gosano sent in from a pass by Pile and beat Avery. The Services had the better of the game but Pau was in good form in goal for the Rest. Leach stopped the ball twenty yards out and with a well directed shot scored for the Services, making the score one all. Both goalies were several times tested but at the interval the score was one all.

Resuming, the Rest forced a corner which was cleared and the Services going down, Alexander turned into goal from a pass by Aird. From now until the finish the Services were on top. Simms received on the penalty line and sent in, the ball glancing off a defender entered the net. Northey ran through the defence and crossed in front of goal. Leach turning the ball into the net to give the Services a four to one lead. Northey and Ward brought the ball down and the former drawing Pau out of goal slipped the ball across and Leach again sent into the net. The six and last goal for the Services was the best of the game. The ball dodged about in front of the Rest's goal and Northey standing well out received and sent along giving Pau no chance.

Lai Yuk Tat and Lam Yuk Ying were absent from the Rest's team.

Prior to the kick off and during the interval, the pipe band of the K.O.S.B.'s played selections on the field.

The game was well attended and the gate mounted to about $1,800.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE INTERPORT TEAM.

[TO THE EDITOR OF "THE HONG KONG DAILY PRESS"]

Sir,—The only mention I made of the Selection Committee in my letters was that the inclusion of the cricketer concerned is a question between that body and "Critics" and, surely, such a remark cannot, by the utmost stretch of one's imagination, be construed as an attempt to "insinuate" that the Selection Committee ought not to be criticised. In controversy, it is convenient to allege—without a shred of evidence in this instance—that your opponent tries to insinuate something and that he is wrong in so doing. But "this is not done" and it is not fair play to try such tactics.

The second paragraph of "Fair Play's" letter with the view that there is nothing wrong with the tone of "Critics" effort calls for no reply, as one is entitled to one's opinion. Perhaps, it is not inappropriate to trot out the truism that there are Hong Kong boys and to add that one can sincerely sympathise with the cricketer concerned and yet take exception to the phraseology of "Critics" last paragraph. However, it must be conceded, that such a distinction cannot be grasped by a prejudiced mind—I am, etc.,

FORECASTS.

The Police are the only League team standing down to-day. Fourteen games are on the card and some good football should be seen. At a glance, all the first-named teams in the Senior Division are likely winners.

The Queen's, who are now quartered at Kowloon, are at home on the Chatham Road ground to the Kowloon F.C. A good game should be seen, but the Queen's will be too strong for the Railway Club team.

Kowloon showed great improvement in their last game when they unexpectedly defeated the R.A.F. on the Railway ground. With several players on the forward line, they are sure to improve as the season advances and the Queen's defence will be hard pressed to keep the youngsters out. The military team's ten goals against South China last week will make them favourites to-day.

A good game should be seen at King's Park between the R.A. and Club de Recreo. It would not come as a surprise if the R.A. should be the first to lower the champions colours this season. The R.A. are, at present, very erratic, as witness their game with the Hong Kong Club a fortnight ago. Having the better of the game with a weakened side, they went all to pieces when the first goal was registered against them.

The Scots Guards are due out on the Hong Kong F.C. ground where they meet the unbeaten Athletic team. Although it is not expected that the Guards will lower the Athletic's colours, they should give a good game and the scoring should be low. Seats will be a premium and late arrivals will be unable to witness the game.

Another win for the R.A.F. should be the result of the game on the Railway ground where they meet South China. The latter team were successful against Kowloon on this ground three weeks ago and the following week, the Air Force went down to Kowloon. While it would appear on paper that South China should win, they will probably come home without a point, for the R.A.F. have shown marked improvement in their recent games.

Hong Kong Club are visitors to Sookunpoo and there should be a very even game. Taylor improved the Club's attack last week and with Stewart back in the team the K.O.S.B.'s will have to go all out to take full points.

The K.O.S.B.'s Reserves are also at Sookunpoo, the R.A. finding the opposition. The K.O.S.B.'s should have an easy win.

Kowloon Reserves should win against the South China "A" on the Railway ground.

At King's Park, the home Reserves will oppose South China "B". The result should be a win for the home team.

The game on St. Joseph's ground should be interesting and the Club should at least secure a point.

The game on the H.K.F.C. ground between the University and the China Athletic Reserves, should end in a win for the latter.

HOCKEY.

WASEDA UNIVERSITY BEAT NAVY.

A CLOSE GAME.

The Waseda University hockey players defeated the Navy by three goals to two on the U.S.R.C. ground yesterday afternoon.

Play was very fast throughout and exchanges were fairly even. Both custodians had plenty to do in the first half, which gave one goal to each side, Ohkubo netting for Waseda and Lt. Comdr. Agnew for the Navy.

During the second half the Navy attacked strongly, but the Japanese in one of their occasional rushes broke through and Ohkubo found the net to give his side the lead. The Navy, however, equalised through a good shot by Lt. Webster. With an even score both sides worked hard to win. The Japanese came near the goal once, but failed when a score looked certain. Within two minutes of the close, however, they attacked again and Hirose scored the winning goal.

Teams:—
Waseda University: Uno, Nishida and Kaneko; Hirai, Okada and Nakajima; Minakami, Ohkubo, Hirose, Tomonaga and Nakata (Captain).
Navy: Tel. King; Lt. Love and Lt. Newman; Surg-Lt. Finlayson, Lt. Davies and Lt. Comdr. Agnew; Lt. Mackendrick, Lt. Jones, Pay-Comdr. Webster (Captain), Lt. Cecil and Lt. Liddell.

Waseda v. Club.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock, the Waseda team will play their last match, their opponents being the Hong Kong Hockey Club. The match will be played at King's Park.

The visitors leave to-morrow by the s.s. Korea Maru for Shanghai where they will take part in a series of matches before returning to Japan.

GOLF.

CHAMPIONSHIP AT SHANGHAI.

M. W. BUDD ELIMINATED IN THE FIRST ROUND.

THE NARROW ESCAPE OF A. R. BLINKO.

Not for a long time has there been such sensational golf in Shanghai as that which took place at Kiangwan on Sunday in the first of the match play rounds of the championship of the Shanghai Golf Club, writes the N.C. Daily News. It will be remembered that the qualifying round took place a week ago, and, in accordance with the decision of the meeting of a year ago, all the match play rounds with the exception of the final have been limited to 18 holes, instead of 36 as previously. Accordingly the first of these rounds took place on Sunday morning, while the second was played off in the afternoon. The semi-final will take place tomorrow, and the final the week following. The new procedure was popular, and there is no denying the fine golf that took place. The most interesting event of the day was the defeat of M. W. Budd in the first round by H. R. Malcolm, while in the second round A. R. Blinko just escaped by the skin of his teeth.

The Results.

The results of the day's play are as follows:—

FIRST ROUND.

R. Lock beat A. Gray, 1 up.
A. V. Pettitt beat K. M. Cumming, 2 and 1.
H. R. Malcolm beat M. W. Budd, 2 and 1.
F. H. Prevot beat J. H. Underwood, 2 and 1.
W. H. Huggett beat T. W. Mitchell, 2 and 1.
A. R. Blinko beat D. Ward-Smith, 4 and 3.
J. F. Pilcher beat R. T. Denison, 5 and 4.
A. Hamilton beat D. McLaren, 1 up.

SECOND ROUND.

R. Lock beat A. V. Pettitt, 1 up.
H. R. Malcolm beat P. H. Prevot, 5 and 3.
A. R. Blinko beat W. H. Huggett, 1 up.
J. F. Pilcher beat A. Hamilton, 1 and 3.

Some Details Of Play.

The scoring was extraordinarily good, and one heard little of anything being done that was not in the 70's. Malcolm was playing a very fine game, and his win over Budd in the morning was the feature of the day. Budd started out by winning the first three holes, but then the situation was reversed. Malcolm was playing an extraordinarily clever jigger, and, except for an eight at the 14th, made no mistakes, whereas Budd in the second nine holes failed to show his usual form. He was not putting as well as he usually does, and accordingly allowed Malcolm to overcome his initial handicap and secure a win. Now, however, his eight at the 14th, Malcolm was round in 74. It was a fine performance, for to beat Budd at any time is difficult, and obviously it was a very difficult job on this occasion.

Malcolm continued his good work in the afternoon when he had to meet Prevot, who was putting up good golf. Prevot had beaten Underwood in the morning by a small margin, but Malcolm had no particular difficulty in overcoming him. As showing the calibre of his play, it should be mentioned that for 17 holes he failed to hole out on one occasion—he had a score of 69 against Prevot.

R. Lock failed to get a distinguished position in the open championship owing to his having taken 95 for one round, but there was nothing of this sort in his play yesterday. He beat Gray by one up in the morning, each taking an approximate 78, and then successfully tackled Pettitt in the afternoon, when he had a victory by a narrow margin.

K. M. Cumming had an experience interesting for one of so long standing and such intimacy with conditions out here. He failed to remember the changed conditions, and in his encounter with Pettitt presumed that it was a match of 36 holes. In no sense did he underestimate his opponent's golf—no one does that with Pettitt, who is one of the most difficult men to beat, for invariably he hangs on to the bitter end—but Cumming spent part of the morning correcting shots which he was playing badly, and hoping that, being only a couple of holes down, he might thereby pull through in the afternoon. Thereby he came a cropper, for Pettitt had him on the 17th green.

Blinko's Close Shave.

W. H. Huggett and T. W. Mitchell were in excellent form in the morning, and the former had to do a 74 to his opponent's 76 to register a victory. In the meantime A. R. Blinko had disposed of

A CHAIN OF STEEL MASTS

THE ELECTRICITY SCHEME FOR ENGLAND.

LONDON'S SUPER-STATION.

Great Britain is about to see a beginning made with the construction of the greatest public utility service which has been conceived so far, in the present century—the standardisation, inter-connection and development of the electricity supply of the country.

It is only eight months since parliamentary authority was given for the vast undertaking, some details of which have already been published in the Daily Press. Already schemes for the provision of a cheap and abundant supply of electricity for two areas—Scotland and London and the Home Counties—have been evolved. A third—for the Midland counties—will have been planned by the end of the year, and within six months plans will be ready for dealing with Yorkshire, Lancashire and Cumberland.

South-West England. North-East England. Work will soon be started on the Scottish scheme.

So rapid has been the preparation of the various schemes that there is every likelihood that a year hence—by which time the Scottish undertaking should be well on the way to completion—evidence of the electricity supply will be visible in every part of the country except the Highlands of Scotland and the extreme south-west of England.

Although the scheme, prepared by the Electricity Commissioners for London and the south-east of England will not be available to the central board for execution until about the end of the month, it is possible to indicate its principal features.

Finest Ever Built.

At present, London is served from 70 power stations; 40 of these will be dispensed with. Later, the number will be reduced to 10, which, it is understood, will supply not only London but the whole area between Peterborough and Southampton.

London will have underground mains, but it will be surrounded by a ring of towers, carrying off current at 132,000 volts, compared with the present maximum of 66,000 volts. New transforming stations will have to be built throughout the south-east counties to deal with this voltage. The expenditure on masts, lines, and transformers will be fully £7,000,000.

Though London will have ten capital stations, the bulk of the supply will be provided by three stations—the present one at Barking, E. and two new stations, one at Chiswick, W., and the other at Battersea, S.W.

The station at Chiswick will be the best of the kind ever built. The site selected is Duke's Meadows, and the 45 acres available will be large enough for a station of at least 325,000 kilowatts installed capacity, and will provide space for the storage of about 150,000 tons of coal, or more than two months' supply under full-load working conditions.

Latticed Masts.

When the great projects in hand are carried out, the countryside will be linked up by a chain of latticed-steel tower masts, 16ft. square at the base and about 60ft. high, carrying the main high-tension lines from selected capital power stations.

Surveys are now being made for the placing of these towers—one will be raised every quarter of a mile in positions which will have the shortest and most direct supply routes through the country.

Tests are to be made of the type of tower it is proposed to adopt to ensure that the system of overhead lines will not constitute a danger to the public.

Ward-Smith, and then in the afternoon he met Huggett. The latter maintained his form, and practically led until the crucial holes at the end. By the 13th hole he was two up on Blinko, and it was not until the 17th that Blinko ever had a lead in the round. Then Huggett just lipped the hole with his putt, and Blinko stood dormie. Huggett made a great attempt to square the match on the last green, but again missed his putt by the narrowest of margins, and Blinko won by one up. Blinko did a 73 in this round, while Huggett had a 75.

Pilcher played good steady golf throughout the day, and appeared to have recovered from the erratic form which he has displayed on some occasions lately. He did a 75 in the morning, and in the afternoon was 77. His opponent in the afternoon was Hamilton, who displayed very good form, but was scarcely a match for Pilcher.

With the elimination of Budd, the contest now takes on a very great deal of interest. Next Sunday Lock will meet Malcolm, while Blinko and Pilcher will have to fight out the other semi-final.

Avoid This Condition

Use Cuticura to help prevent premature baldness. Dandruff and irritation point to an unhealthy condition of the scalp which leads to falling hair and premature baldness. Regular shampoos with Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment when required, do much to prevent such a condition.

Scalp Ointment. Taken sold throughout the world. Cuticura Soap, 2/6. Cuticura Ointment, 1/6. Cuticura for the Cutaneous Shaving Stick.

It is a portrait of J. N. Niepce, one of the inventors of photography, taken by Professor Goldberg, of Dresden. To be seen it has to be looked at through a microscope.

The actual photograph is so small that more than 100 of the same size would not be crowded on a small pinhead. It has to be magnified 150,000 times before it becomes a distinguishable portrait of a man about an inch square.

In another room was a photograph about 6-in. by 7-in. which shows the whole of New York. It includes 30 square miles of territory and was taken at a height of 12,000-ft., or more than two miles.

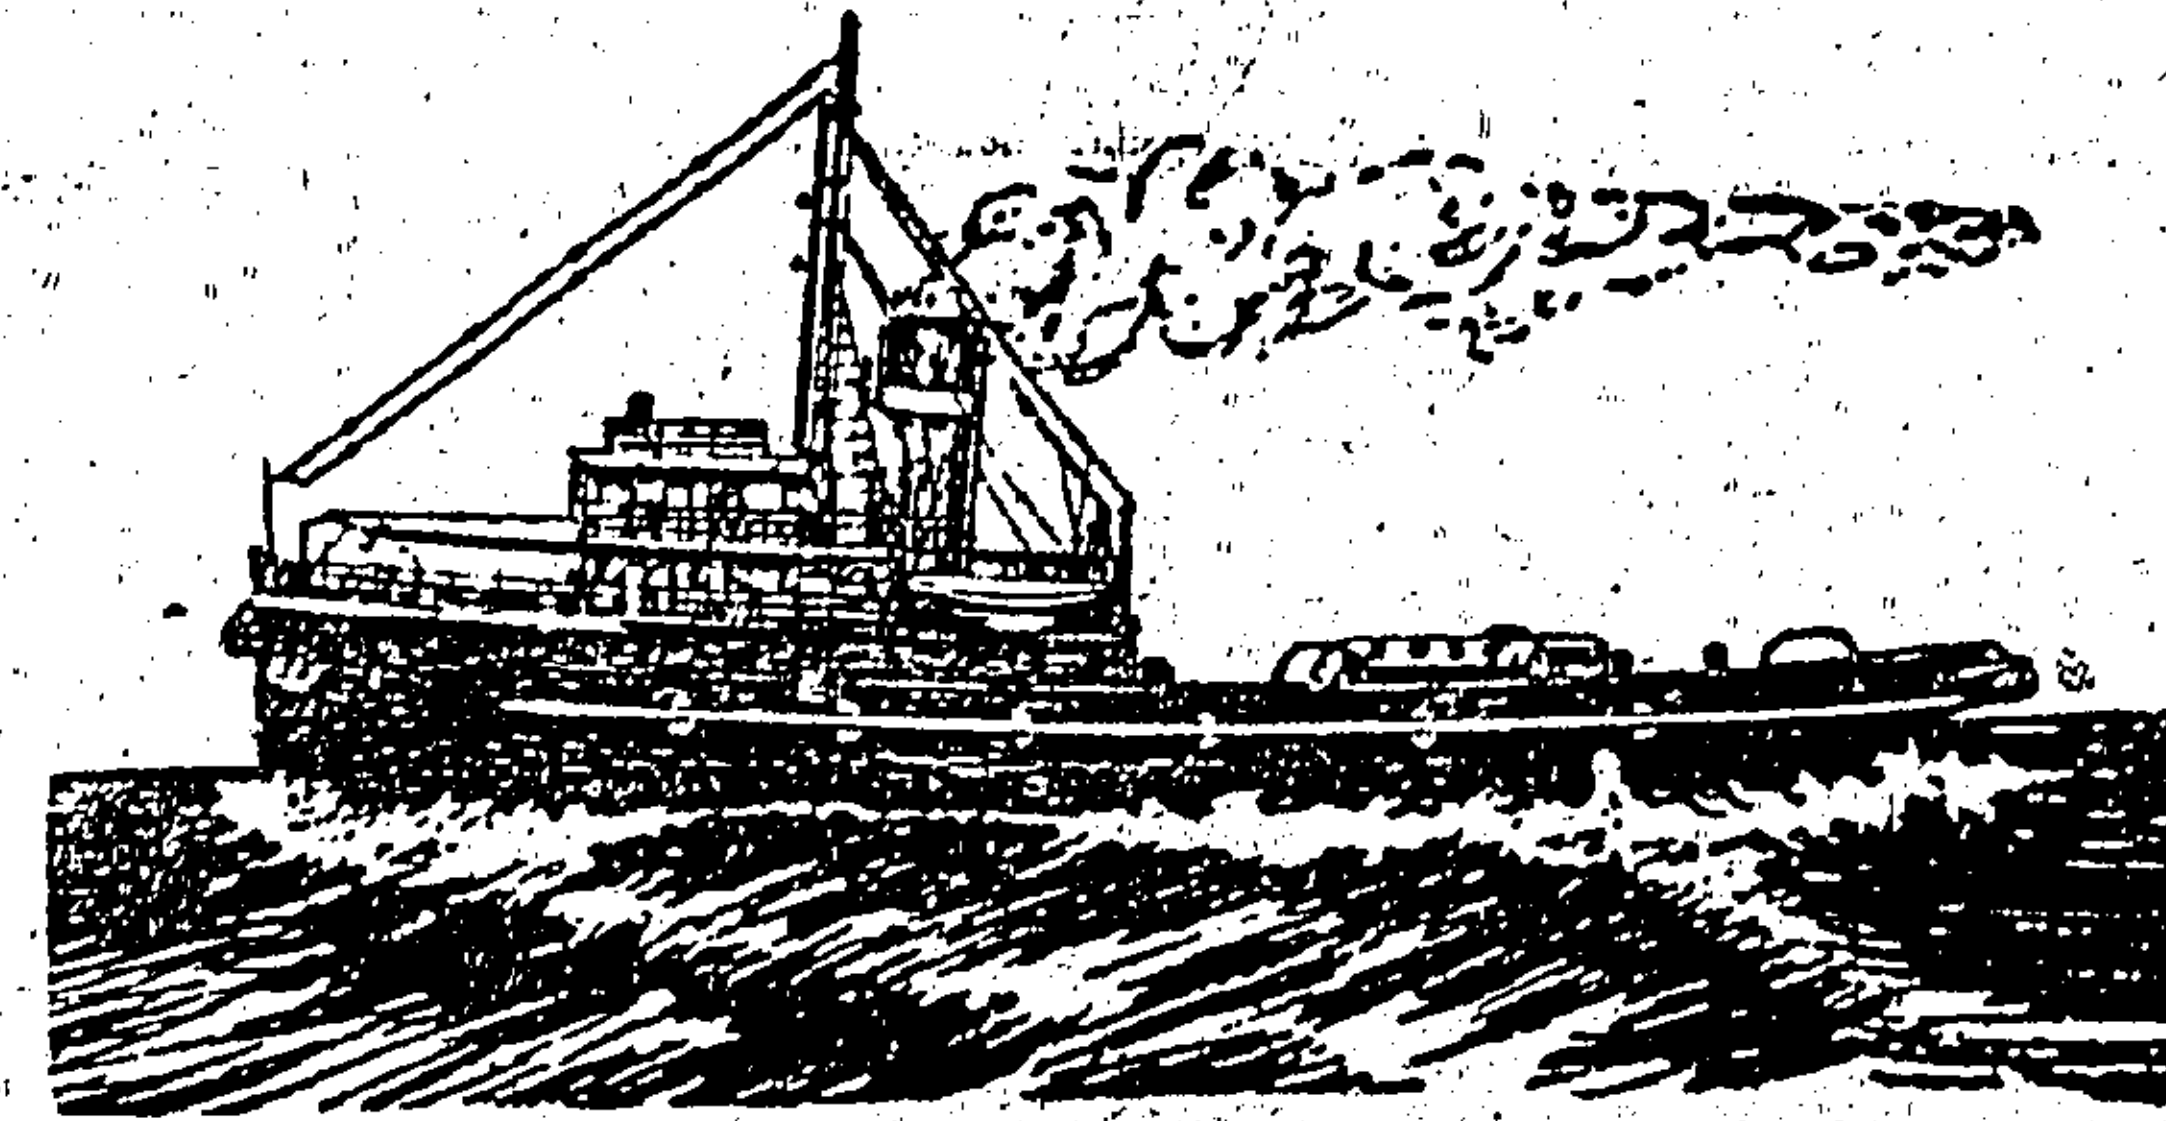

It is claimed as one of the outstanding technical achievements of the year, and it is almost bewildering in the complex and minute details it shows. One can distinguish clearly sky-scrapers, bridges and streets.

The Misty Mountain.
The camera can now take things not seen by the eye, as is demonstrated by two remarkable photographs. One shows a mountain shrouded in mist. The other reveals the ordinary aspect of the mountain with full detail, although when the photograph was taken the mist was still there. The explanation is that for the latter a camera was used which contained a red sensitive plate and a haze-cutting filter to eliminate the blue rays. By these means the camera can see through mist and fog.
